

LEBANESE, ISRAELI BORDER CHECKPOINT

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- The "good fence" at Dovev on the Israeli-Lebanese border is being turned into an official border checkpoint similar to the arrangement at the Jordan River bridges. This is in anticipation of the 100 Lebanese residents who are coming to Israel for a month-long visit with relatives in a sort of program similar to the summer visitors project over the Jordan bridges. More Lebanese visitors are expected to come for long periods. Officials reported that more than 5600 Lebanese have received medical treatment in northern Israel since a field hospital was set up in mid-April to treat victims of the Lebanese civil war. About two-thirds of those treated were Maronite Christians and the rest Moslems. Officials also reported that a former resident of the Tel Zaatar camp, the Palestinian stronghold which fell to attacking Christian forces, had his vision restored in an operation at the government hospital in Nahariya.

DINITZ OUTLINES PEACE PRINCIPLES

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Five "cardinal" principles for achieving peace in the Middle East were outlined by Simcha Dinitz, Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, at a meeting of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations. They are: the Soviet Union should be kept out of the negotiating process; a strong Israel is a necessary precondition for free negotiations; there must be a security margin to protect Israel against invasion; foreign guarantees cannot be a substitute for a negotiated settlement, and no imposed peace. Dinitz said there is no progress at present toward peace because the Arab states are waiting to see the outcome of the Lebanese conflict.
