

MARIE McMILLAN FOR ASSEMBLY 4

Marie McMillan, a certified flight instructor and UNLV archeology student, has filed as a candidate for State Assembly, District 4. McMillan is a member of the Clark County Central Democratic Committee, and lives at 705 Twin Lakes Drive, the geographical center of District 4.

Although she has never before run for political office, McMillan has campaigned for and held offices in the Ninety-Nines, an International Organization of Women Pilots.

She is also active in Civil Air Patrol, Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, Wings for Direct Relief, Women's Air and Space Museum and is presently serving on the Nominating Committee of the Southwest Section 99s.

She is also a Licensed Nevada Real Estate Agent, and has worked in the past for University of California Radiation Laboratory, Atomic Energy Commission Test Division, Holmes and Narver Special Projects Division, State of Nevada Division of Welfare and the Human Resources Development Program in the Employment Security Division of the State.

She has been active with the Scouts, PTA, League of Women Voters, Audiometric Hearing Conservation Program and the United Fund.

The candidate supports mandatory sentences for violent crimes, stating the present laws leave too much discretion in sentencing.

McMillan will support the Equal Rights Amendment when it comes to a vote, and will also vote for the elimination of sales tax on medicines and groceries.

"People should not be taxed on what keeps them alive. The tax puts a strain on low income families and elderly citizens who can least afford it," she said.

The 46-year-old candidate is married to Dr. James McMillan, a dentist who is a candidate for Clark County Commission, Seat D.

She was educated at the University of California at Berkeley and California School of Fine Arts.

JAMES McMILLAN FOR COMMISSION D

Breaking up the "power play" of the existing county commission is the motivation which brought dentist James B. McMillan into the county commission seat D contest.

McMillan, 58, is a Democrat who has unsuccessfully sought public office three times in the past.

In 1958 McMillan challenged Howard Cannon for a Senate seat. In 1960 he ran against Harley Harmon for a county commission seat and in 1972 he ran in the county commission race against James Brennan.

McMillan does not favor the Nevada Supreme Court decision forcing the commission candidates to run at large this year instead of from districts.

The blacks "are not sure of getting representation" under the at large system, he fears. The court order also forces candidates to spend more money on the campaign and thus puts

She has two sons, two step-children and one grandson, and has lived in her District for 16 years.

McMillan bases her campaign on listening to and hearing the people and their problems. She plans to meet as many of the voters as possible in the next few weeks, and will research the issues and poll her district on certain issues.

them in a position to make more promises to big money backers, he added.

The cost of an at-large campaign is out of proportion to the office, according to McMillan.

The candidate favors consolidation of the city and county as a method of saving money and delivering more efficient services to the voters.

Consolidation would eliminate much of the "power base" built up by long standing politicians in the community, said McMillan.

The county commission should "stop playing games" with the airport and develop an adequate master plan for expansion instead of piecemeal work, he added.

McMillan and his wife Marie have four children and reside at 705 Twin Lakes Drive.
