

ISRAEL DENIES

York October 4 - 5 with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, staunchly denied the existence of a secret agreement. What there was, officials said October 16, was a clear understanding of the Israeli position, namely, that Israel would not participate in Geneva talks if PLO representatives were present or if the issue of a Palestinian state was broached. Dayan himself stressed in a radio interview October 15 that there was nothing in writing. "There is, nevertheless, a clear understanding with Washington that Israel will walk out (of Geneva) if the terrorist group (PLO) is included."

Meanwhile, Washington appeared to be playing a double-edged game: on the one hand it sought publicly to soften and blur differences with Israel over the issue of PLO representation at Geneva; on the other hand, U.S. officials behind the scenes expressed chagrin at Israel's refusal to deal with the PLO or countenance a Palestinian state. U.S. Administration officials reportedly were satisfied with Dayan's explanation of his talks with President Carter. At the same time, Hodding Carter sought to dispel reports that the U.S. was perturbed over the publication October 13 by Israel of the working paper. He said he was not prepared to answer whether the U.S. had understood Israel was not to make public the working paper until the Arabs had responded to it. However, unofficially, Administration spokesmen expressed irritation that the paper had been published despite the fact that Dayan had earlier promised not to do so, and expressed concern that it will be harder for the Arab countries to agree to the document now that it has been made public.

The Soviet Union has already blasted it as a move to split the Arab ranks.

BREAKDOWN IN LEBANESE CEASE-FIRE CAUSES CONCERN

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- The breakdown of the cease-fire in southern Lebanon, where the Palestinian terrorists have resumed shelling Christian enclaves in the border region north of Metullah, has evoked grave concern in Israel.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, in a meeting with U. S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis October 14, stressed that while Israel has refrained so far from resuming its aid to the Christians, it regards the latest situation as serious. He urged the U.S. to intervene with the Syrian authorities to force the Palestinians to observe the cease-fire. The U.S. Embassy here disclosed that the American Ambassador in Beirut is in contact with the Lebanese government in an effort to get the terrorists to end the shooting and withdraw to the cease-fire lines and that Damascus has in fact been approached by the U.S. on this issue.

Meanwhile, Weizman announced that Israel has suspended its talks with Lebanese army officers until the situation calms down. This was, he said, to stress to the Lebanese authorities the gravity with which Israel views the cease-fire violations. Israeli officers and a Lebanese colonel and two majors met recently at the coastal border post of Rosh Hanikra, while the cease-fire was still in effect, to discuss the plans by the Lebanese army to take over strongholds in southern Lebanon as agreed under the cease-fire.
