JEWISH LEADERS SORRY OVER POPE'S DEATH

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Israeli leaders and Jewish leaders in the United States and other parts of the world, expressed sorrow and condolences to Catholics over the death of Pope Paul VI, who died August 6 at the age of 80 from a heart attack. Israeli leaders, including Premier Menachem Begin, President Yitzhak Navon and Minister of Religion Aharon Abu-Hatzeira, sent condolence cables to the Vatican. Israel's Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi, Shlomo Goren, declared that the Pope "tried to remove the chronic hatred between Christianity and Judaism."

The role of Pope Paul VI as a figure who contributed to peace and understanding among Jews and Christians was praised and assessed by leaders of American Jewry. They noted that Pope Paul was one of the architects of the improvement of Christian - Jewish relations inaugurated by his predecessor, Pope John XXIII, and the Second Vatican Council.

A number of Jewish leaders praised Pope Paul's key role in speaking out for peace in the Mideast. Others lauded the Pope's major theological decisions regarding Jews and Judaism. Following his meeting with Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel, the noted Jewish scholar, the Pope, on October 20, 1965, promulgated the well-known Vatican Declaration on Non-Christians Religions, which represented a major shift in Catholic doctrine regarding the Jews. The declaration refuted the charges "of collective Jewish guilt for the death of Christ," and called for mutual respect between Christians and Jews. In 1977 the Pope renounced all Catholic efforts to proselytize among Jews.

In 1964, Pope Paul became the first Pontiff to journey to Israel, at which time he visited the Church of the Nativity in Nazareth and the Church of the Last Supper on Jerusalem's Mount of Olives. Although the visit did not represent any change in the Roman Catholic Church's traditional position regarding the State of Israel, Pope Paul did meet unofficially with former President of Israel Zalman Shazar at the Mandelbaum Gate in Jerusalem. During his reign, the Pope also established contact with Jewish political and intellectual leaders from Israel and other nations. In addition to receiving Abba Eban, Moshe Dayan and other leading Israelis, the Pontiff held an unprecedented meeting with Premier Golda Meir in January, 1973, the first audience granted to an Israeli head of state.
