

MORAL LEADERSHIP URGED ON SO. AFRICAN JEWS

CAPE TOWN (WNS) -- A Johannesburg rabbi has urged South African Jews to give a "moral lead" in the achievement of a just society in their country. In the keynote address to the 1978 Cape Conference of the South African Jewish Board of Deputies, Rabbi Norman N.M. Bernhard of the Oxford Synagogue Center in Johannesburg, said that Jews should "take a firm stand of equity and fair play and dignity for every human being in this country without fear of consequences. He said he was disappointed that fear of losing popularity or profit and self-protection inhibited Jews from taking a moral stand. Dissension itself is not going to cause anybody his living, let alone his life," Bernhard declared. "You will not endanger your lives as with Soviet Jews just speaking out. He said that Jews have to see how we can maintain our integrity in a situation which, without question, is basically intolerable in terms of the attitudes and the ideas with which we are here." Dr. I. Abramowitz, left South Africa and others are considering leaving, he believed that in the foreseeable future the vast majority would remain.
