BEGIN & SADAT DECIDE ON OPEN BORDERS AT EL ARISH MEETING

IRAN RIPS INTO U.S. AND JAVITZ

WASH. (WNS) -- Both the Carter Administration and Sen. Jacob Javits (R, NY) have urged Americans to show restraint in the wake of attacks from Iranian officials. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called the U.S. a "wounded snake" and Javits and his wife, Marian, were singled out for vilification by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, head of the revolutionary tribunal, who said the Javitses were wanted in Iran for "corruption and misappropriation of Iranian public funds." The personal attack on the U.S. and the Javitses came after the Senate passed a resolution, sponsored by Javits, condemning the mass executions in Iran without due process of law. Mrs. Javits was attacked because she served as a public relations consultant to the Iranian airline in 1975. She resigned in January, 1976, because of criticism that her work might have led to a conflict of interest with her husband's work as the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. State Department spokesman Kenneth Brown said that the attack on Javits was of "concern" to the U.S. but refused to go further than that. Javits at first termed the Iranian attack "just ridiculous" but when pressed by reporters for a comment later he said "the Senate has spoken to the Iranian people as friends and to the government of Iran with which we wish to be friendly." The Javitses were given police protection both at their New York home and in Washington.

Meanwhile, Nazi-hunter Serge Klarsfeld has gone to Teheran from Paris to protest the execution of Habib Elkanian, the former Jewish community leader, and to try to assist four Iranian Jews still held in "revolutionary Islamic" jails. Iranian Justice Minister Assadollah Mobasherin told Klarsfeld May 24 that Iran's Jews have nothing to fear from the new regime. In another report from Teheran, a major and sergeant in the Shah's army were executed and two generals were given long prison terms. One of them, Gen. Manoucher Vajdi, was sentenced to 15 years in prison after being accused of collaborating with the secret service of Israel.

LATE BULLETIN

BEGIN AND SADAT AGREED ON OPEN BORDERS TO COMMENCE IMMEDIATELY ON MAY 27.

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Whether the borders between Israel and Egypt are open soon will depend on what Israeli Premier Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat decide when they meet in El Arish May 27.

This was made clear after Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met with Boutros Ghali, Egyptian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, there May 22. Sadat and Begin had agreed at their meeting in Cairo that the borders would be opened after El Arish is turned over to Egyptian rule May 25. But Ghali said the borders will be opened in accordance with the Israeli - Egyptian peace treaty which calls for their opening nine months after the treaty is ratified. Begin before leaving for London May 22 rejected Ghali's contention. He said that one time previously when Ghali had made a similar statement Sadat contradicted him. Begin said he would clarify the issue when he meets with Sadat.

Dayan told reporters that if the borders are not opened immediately no Israeli fishing crafts would be permitted in Egyptian territorial waters, meaning the waters off El Arish, and no Egyptian crafts could operate off the Gaza Strip. He said El Arish residents would not be able to go to their jobs in Israel or Israeli-held Sinai. El Arish farmers would not be allowed to tend their fields on the Israeli side

Familiar Jewish Quotations

L. ROSTEN'S BOOK GOOD DEEDS

If you can't help a friend with money, at least give a krechts (sigh).

The man who seeks a faultless friend will remain friendless.

One enemy is too many; and a hundred friends are not enough.

It's not good to be alone -- even in Paradise.

One's best friend is in the mirror.

Descend a step in taking a wife; ascend a step in choosing a friend.

A big blow from a stranger hurts less than a small blow from a friend.

The man who has no money to lend friends makes no enemies.

Better one old friend than two new ones.

A friend you get for nothing, an enemy you have to pay for.

Men become like those they associate with. Old friends, like old wine, don't lose their flavor.

Better one friend with a dish of food than a hundred with a gripe.

We all remain better friends -- at a slight distance.

With a glass of wine, you can find many friends.

It's good to eat with a friend, but not from one plate.

Your friend has a friend -- so tell him no secrets.

Friendship is stronger than kinship.

If your friend is honey, don't lick him up altogether.

Many crowd the gate of abundance but even friends pass the door of misery.

One is none. (It is better to have others than be alone.)

You can't patch up a torn friendship.

Sometimes a good friend is better than a brother.

The man who thinks he can live without others is mistaken; the one who thinks others can't live without him is even more deluded.

If two logs are dry and one is wet, the kindling of the two will kindle the wet one, too.

My friend is he who will tell me my faults, in private.

A man without friends is like a left hand without a right.

Do not give your love to a friend all at once.
