wives Rita and Alice and friends. Also there were his brothers and sister - in - law, Sy, Bill and Dottie from Florida and New Jersey, and his mother - in - law, Bessie, from North Bergen, N.J. His granddaughters Bonnie, Michele, Robyn and Jennifer and his niece Charlene were all there. Jack's many friends from Las Vegas and afar were also in attendance including Jerry and Marty from Laurel, Maryland, and Bessie and Morris from I A.

The stone was unveiled and read Jack Tell 1909 - 1979. "One Man Plus the Truth Constitutes a Majority."

The legacy lives on. His influence on each and every one there is a solid reminder that this man did not live in vain. You can still hear him say, "Use your own judgement."
 May he rest in peace.

War Between Jews

American Jews are constantly being admonished not to interfere in Israel's internal disputes. Yet we should not sit quietly in the face of the growing bitterness between the various factions in Israel. The name-calling has gotten so bad that a group of Knesset members from all parties have gotten together in an effort to end the vituperation that has marked recent Knesset debates.

But even more ominous is the threat of violence between the various sides within Israel. The outrageous Palestine Liberation Organization terrorist attack in Hebron May 2 in which six yeshiva students were murdered has increased the demand by some Jewish militants for retaliation against the Arabs. This may have been the motive behind the equally heinous attack against West Bank mayors which left two of them maimed. No one yet knows who were the perpetrators of the attack on the mayors but several hitherto unknown ultra - nationalist Jewish groups have claimed credit for the attacks.

One of these groups, calling itself "Terror Against Terror" also claimed responsibility for vandalizing the offices of the leftwing Sheli faction. Some MKs have reportedly been threatened. In return, Shelo has announced it is setting up an unarmed militia to protect its members and property. The situation could eventually turn into one with every faction having gangs, armed or unarmed, which could lead to physical fights between the groups.

It was to prevent this that David Ben Gurion at the very outset of the establishment of the State of Israel disbanded the popular Palmach and other separate fighting units. He molded the Palmach, the Irgun, the Stern Group and others into the Israel Defense Force which has become an effective modern army and has helped maintain the democratic character of Israel.

Ben - Gurion's old adversary, Menachem Begin, supported him in this. At one time in the 1970, some young members of Herut reportedly wanted to organize to attack leftwing groups. Begin squashed this move immediately.

The Israeli government should act now. The Jews of the diaspora are expected to display their unity for the benefit of the survival of the Jewish State. The Jews of Israel can do no less.

whereby to split NATO and draw into its orbit many hitherto wavering states.

Despite President Carter's call for a boycott to date some ninety states from around the globe have announced plans to participate in the Olympics, while only twenty - nine of the fifty-one who have announced their non-participation have so far declined an invitation.

While the Soviets, as is known, have exploited this world organization using it as a fertile field in which to win new friends, mainly in the third world bloc, by professing to play the role of benefactor on behalf of all oppressed people, they will be on home grounds in Moscow this summer and no UN forum can give them what an Olympics can provide in the realm of propaganda.

No wonder President Carter, realizing fully well what the 1980 international games will mean for the USSR politically -- especially in the aftermath of Afghanistan and Iran -- is deeply involved in his efforts to win over some of the wavering allies and others to his anti - Moscow - Olympics boycott campaign.

Thus, despite the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, a Moslem state, many Islamic nations including the Arab regimes of Iraq, Libya, Algeria, Jordan, Syria, Kuwait and Lebanon, are among those listed to attend the Olympics. Moscow's price, of course, is a commitment to stand by them versus Israel.

Moreover, notwithstanding Carter's campaign, such 'allies' as Britain, Austria, Australia, Denmark, Finland, France, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland and Greece plan to go to Moscow this summer. Two other states vital to America's interests, Spain and Portugal, are also sending their athletes to the Russian capital.

Only two Arab states have declined invitations. These are Saudi Arabia and Tunisia. Three others have not yet responded -- Egypt, Morocco and the Sudan. Israel, as was expected, has announced its firm stand with the U.S.

Among the major American allies who have heeded Carter's call are Canada, Japan and West Germany only. There's still a big question about the latter. In the light of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's projected visit to the USSR later this month, one cannot be too sure about Bonn's intentions. It may well be tempted to follow in the footsteps of France's Giscard d'Estaing, footsteps leading straight into the Soviet orbit and thence into a deal with the Arab world.

"...What France has in mind is a global approach, one that would be aimed at cohesive group of states, i.e. the Europe of the liberal democracies, the African governments recognized by the OAU, and the Arab world as represented by the Arab League...."

Who then, one may ask, among America's 'allies' can be trusted? Japan? The United Kingdom? West Germany? France? None of these! Canada? Yes! Israel? Of course! Egypt? Perhaps.

The 1980 Olympics in Moscow should prove decisive in determining new political alignments on the global scene, alignments that should greatly widen the gap between East and West to the detriment of the U.S. which will find itself more and more isolated and bereft of reliable allies -- the price of indecision, complacency and bungling -- Administration failings the Soviets have exploited to the hilt in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and even in the Latin Americas, and this with the aid of their surrogates, the Cubans and the PLO terrorists -- all sowing their seeds of terror and discord aimed primarily against the United States of America and its handful of reliable friends.

As we stated at the outset, all indications point to the fact that the Soviet Union is going to use the 1980 Olympics as a political platform to split NATO and draw into its orbit many hitherto wavering nations. Thus, it seems, the Kremlin leaders are delighted to have accepted America's challenge and the reformer gladly entered into the 'contest' with Washington over who should and who should not participate in the games. They are now gloating over the lead France has taken and see this move as a trend in their favor.

Behind The Scenes At The United Nations

USSR Exploits Olympics

UNITED NATIONS (WUP) -- All indications point to the fact that the Soviet Union is going to use the 1980 Olympics as a political platform

As recently as May 21 -- a few days after the French President had met secretly with Brezhnev in Warsaw to the dismay of Washington -- d'Estaing issued a statement at the Sixth Franco - African Conference which was captioned "France's Position on the European-African-Arab Trilogue." This statement, released by the French Mission here at the UN, was so drafted that one would think that there was no Israel in the Mediterranean world. Clause one of the five clauses reads:

King of One Liners

HENNY YOUNGMAN
...Man of Many Talents.

IN HOLLYWOOD THEY HAVE COMMUNITY PROPERTY. A COUPLE GETS DIVORCED, SHE GETS THE JAGUAR, HE GETS THE LITTLE CAR.
