moves in the Mideast.

On the matter of the controversial issue of Jewish settlements on the West Bank, Reagan expressed an understanding of Israeli motives. However, he believes that their recent moves may not be helpful to the peace process.

He views Israel as a "strategic asset" to the United States, and said we should not attempt to impose a settlement on the West Bank issue on the parties to the conflict. "We must assure them of our willingness to help them arrive at a fair and a just and a peaceful solution, but we should not dictate to them."

What about the influence of Arab oil?

"Of course, United States access to oil is a strategic problem and I don't suppose anyone can eliminate that as a consideration," Reagan responded. "But, I also wonder why we are not consulting with our allies in Western Europe; they are far more dependent on Middle East oil than are we. We should have a common policy -- not just one for the United States."

Turning to his prediction that the Jewish voters will this year shift in increasing numbers to his support, Ronald Reagan compared the switch to the movement of the Catholics from the Democratic to the Republican column.

"Today, the Republican Party has much more to offer."

Concerning the Jewish vote, he told me, "This time I am inclined to believe I may be able to count on a sizeable portion. The Jewish people have approved of what I did as governor of California. I would hope they have confidence in me and in what I would accomplish as President of the United States."

ple President. An original steel and bronze sculpture portraying the Burning Bush of the Biblical story, which stands majestically on the grounds of Temple Beth Sholom, 1600 E. Oakey Blvd., was dedicated recently to the cherished memory of Ida Devine, late beloved wife of well-known local business man and philanthropist, Irving Devine. Devine and members of his family as well as close friends attended and participated in religious services at the Temple on Friday evening, July 11, 1980, at which time a dedication ceremony was conducted by Rabbi Kalman Appel, spiritual leader of the Temple. Other participants in the ceremony included Herb Kaufman, Pres.; Jerry Gordon, Vice Pres.; and Leo A. Wilner, Executive Director. Two baskets of beautiful roses, favorite flower of Ida Devine, adorned the pulpit.

The sculpture was conceived and designed by Eric Ray, former head of the Art Department of the University of Judaism in Los Angeles, and fabricated by Daniel Gluck, noted west coast sculptor.

U.S. DEFENDS SALE OF TANKS TO JORDAN

WASH. (WNS) -- The proposed sale of 100 sophisticated M-60 American tanks to Jordan was defended by the Carter Administration as "fully consistent with American interests in the region."

Harold Saunders, Assistant Secretary of State for Near East and South Asian Affairs, told a House Foreign Affairs Committee sub-committee that "Jordan has a long standing policy of denying Jordanian territory to potential terrorists." He said Jordan "works actively for the stability and security of the states of the Persian Gulf and states of the Arabian Peninsula."

Saunders said that Jordan is planning to dispose of the M-48 tanks it now has when it gets delivery of the new tanks in the next two years.
