

Political Hopefuls

LAMB VOWS TO KEEP NEVADA HEALTHY

SEN. FLOYD LAMB

Vowing to continue his conservative fiscal policies, State Senator Floyd R. Lamb has filed for another term to the Nevada State Senate representing District Three.

"I realize Nevada has felt the pinch of a national recession, but thanks to our strong economy, the people in Nevada have not been hurt nearly as much as residents of other states."

Lamb pointed out that, depending on family income, residents in almost every other state in America have double or triple the tax burden that we have in Nevada. "In fact," said Lamb, "Utah residents with a family income of $17,500 have a $1267 yearly tax burden. In Nevada it's $593. California families, even after they passed Proposition 13, still pay almost double the total state taxes that we do in Nevada. Only two states in America have lower total taxes and we have a much better standard of living."

"My record shows I hate taxes and wasting money," said Lamb. "I'm proud of Nevada's financial strength, and, as Chairman of Senate Finance, I'll continue my war against tax increases and wasteful government spending."

"It's tough enough making ends meet with inflation and rising costs eating up more and more of everyone's paychecks. I'm going to continue to look for more ways to put money in people's pockets, not take it out."

"We can't afford to relax," Lamb added. "With competition for the tourist dollar getting tougher and tougher, we must aggressively seek new industry and look for more ways to expand our revenues. I particularly favor light industry, warehousing, and other non-polluting businesses."

Lamb, a native Nevadan, has been Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee for 15 years. Since he took over in 1965, Nevada has never been in the red and has always been able to maintain a budget surplus to handle emergencies.

Lamb, a Democrat, has already initiated bills to eliminate the sales tax from food if Question Six passes, along with establishing a separate State Division of Aging to give our seniors a stronger voice in State Government and more protection on a daily basis. This move will be accomplished at no increase in cost to the taxpayers.

Further new projects from Lamb include sponsoring a bill that will enable senior citizens to receive a rebate on their power bills, another new bill to further help handicapped Nevadans, and reconstructing part of his bill of two years ago which allows for more direct tax relief for renters and homeowners.

"I'm convinced renters and those in mobile home parks need more help. These residents now constitute over 100,000 people in Southern Nevada and it's time we pay more attention to their needs. We must make sure that renters and those in mobile home parks receive a fair share of Nevada's tax relief programs."

"I love this state," concluded Lamb, "and as long as people like the job I do as their representative, I'll continue to serve Southern Nevada to the utmost of my ability."

KARAMANOS SEEKS RE-ELECTION AS UNIVERSITY REGENT

KARAMANOS

University of Nevada Regent Chris Karamanos has filed to retain his District C seat in the 1980 election.

A longtime Las Vegas businessman, Karamanos has held his regent post since 1976, when Governor Mike O'Callaghan appointed him to fill the unexpired term of Helen Thompson.

In 1978 Karamanos was elected to the board by popular vote, where he served as chairman of the investment advisory committee, an integral part of the university finance system.

"I want to continue to provide for ongoing dialogue with students, administrators, faculty and other university-related people around the state," said Karamanos.

A strong proponent of a law school for Southern Nevada and a new community college for the West Charleston area, Karamanos said he would strive to strengthen Nevada's higher educational system throughout the state.

Karamanos was a principal motivator in obtaining funds for a new Business and Hotel Administration College on the UNLV campus, and strongly backed the 30,000-seat expansion of Las Vegas Stadium.

Elect John SLEEPER

Justice of the Peace
Dept. 5

*"We need a judge,
not a politician"*

Attention
KENO BUFFS

8 Out Of 8
For $1 WINS

$50,000.00

