ears here at the UN and the U.S. Administration blinded itself to the tragedy resulting from the Iraqi - Iranian deal.

Iraqis? No doubt he finds himself in a dilemma as to which of the two to support. He could, of course, feign a posture of 'neutrality' to please his mentors in Moscow. One thing is certain, the subtle, satanic enemy of Israel will play one against the other in a deceitful maneuver of self - interest.

It must be noted that the Kurds were and still are sympathetic to Israel which in turn had supported them with certain arms.

The question now arises: where does Yasir Arafat stand today? Will he continue to support the fanatic Khomeini who had turned over the Israeli Embassy in Teheran to him or will he join the camp of the heavily - Soviet - armed

And there is a tendency on the part of Israel's enemies here at the UN to involve the Jewish State in the latest conflict. Speaking in the Security Council on the crisis last week, USSR Ambassador Troyanovsky quite correctly noted that the Iraqi - Iranian war "was diverting attention of both Iran and Iraq and other countries in the area from the struggle against Israel and imperialist forces in the region."

One may ask: Why should Moscow and company bemoan this fact. Is the Kremlin sad and disappointed that the Arabs and Moslems are fighting among themselves and not directing their united front against Israel? Troyanovski's words betrayed the Soviets true policy vis - a - vis Israel.

But as regards the present regime in Russia, the law of retribution is bound to take effect there too as it is now operating in Iraq and Iran. It will not fail in this generation which has witnessed the rebirth of Israel in her ancient land, the Third Hebrew Commonwealth.

And as for Egypt, its Deputy Prime Minister Kamal Hassan Ali -- who delivered his country's foreign policy speech here one day after Israel's Shamir delivered his -- still insisted on Israel "terminating the foreign occupation of Palestinian territories in the West Bank, Arab Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip"...and for "the Palestinian people to establish their own independent state in Palestine..."
