

BALL, REAGAN CLASH OVER ISRAEL

WASH. (WNS) -- his support from Former Undersecretary of State George Ball who announced that he has switched independent John Anderson to President Carter, and Richard Allen, the chief foreign policy advisor to Republican Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, clashed over whether Israel is a strategic asset to the United States.

Allen said it is, while Ball called Israel "an enormous inhibition" on U. S. policy in the Middle East.

The clash came during a question on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" when Allen was asked if Israel could be used by the U.S. in the current Iranian - Iraqi crisis. Allen replied he did not believe so, but added, Governor Reagan proceeds to an appreciation of Israel because he believes it is a strategic asset for the United States. "It represents an off-setting power. It's a stable democracy." He added that the U.S. is "committed not only on the basis of our strategic interests, but also based on a deep moral commitment that we have to the State of Israel. Israel is an important ally... It must continue to be able to defend itself against any possible threat to its existence."
