judgments about another....

"The propagation of hatred and bigotry in the name of religion on a global scale is of itself a cause of great concern. But when, as today, such hatred and bigotry are combined with the economic power of Arab petro-dollars and oil blackmail, the potential danger facing the world becomes all the more awesome. The arrogance of the Arab petro-hegemonists has been repeatedly demonstrated by overt threats, by bribery and by attempts to dictate to free countries how they should act in the international arena, how they should vote here in this Assembly and even what they can show on their television screens..

"The unholy combination of bigotry and oil blackmail is of itself a cause of great concern. But beyond that, when invective and the unbridled power of oil are then put at the service of international terror, the dangers facing the world are further compounded. If we are honest with ourselves, we must admit that the United Nations must also take some of the blame for the spread of international terrorism, particularly since the murderous attack on the Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics in 1972. Intimidated by oil blackmail, this body has been immobilized in the face of the scourge of terror. Not only had it been unable to go beyond sterile rhetoric, it has in fact tacitly and overtly supported international terror.

"Indeed, one such group of international terrorists has been granted irregular privileges in this Organization, in clear violation of the UN Charter and its rules of procedure. For practical purposes that terrorist group enjoys all the rights of membership in this Organization without of course being subject to any of the concomitant obligations and duties."

Here, Blum, of course, was referring to the PLO.

He concluded his statement with this warning:

"It is a chilling irony of fate that as the rostrum of this Assembly was being abused for a call for a holy war against my country, a Jewish house of worship was being made the target of a vicious bomb attack. That outrage in the heart of Europe must serve as a reminder of how a campaign of hatred, launched by rabble - rousers and bigots, can so easily lead to conflagration and massacre..."

Opportunism of Hussein

King Hussein of Jordan, long the favorite of the United States government and the American media, is now showing his true colors in the Iraqi - Iranian war; that of a blatant opportunist.

Hussein has long posed as the gallant young monarch who would be willing to make peace with Israel if only the other Arab countries would let him. Like his grandfather, King Abdullah, he claimed to enter into war against Israel only reluctantly, forced by pressure from his fellow Arab countries.

Now, when some Arab voices would be helpful in putting an end to the Iraqi - Iranian war which threatens to become an even wider conflict, Hussein does not even have the grace of taking his former stance of remaining quiet. Instead, he has become the leading Arab spokesman in support of Iraq. Soviet bloc countries supply Iraq through the Jordanian port of Aqaba, just across from the Israeli port of Eilat. Hussein has gone to other countries, particularly Saudi Arabia, to urge their support for Iraq.

There have been several reasons given for his position, all of which reveal opportunism. One is that he hopes Jordan will benefit if Iraq gains control of the Iranian oilfields. The other is that the hope that this show of support for Arab "rights" will win him back Arab support for his control of the West Bank which the Arab countries gave to the Palestine Liberation Organization instead.

This is the man who has refused to support the Camp David accords despite his reported desire for peace and the years of American support for his regime. This is the man who talks of Israeli occupation but forgets that for 19 years Jordan was the occupying power on the West Bank, during which Hussein mentioned nothing about Palestinian rights or a Palestinian state. This is a man who denies Israel's right to govern all of Jerusalem, while for the 19

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- The Knesset adopted a 90 million Shekel revised budget Oct. 21 after defeating a no - confidence vote on the Government's economic policies by a 59-42 vote. Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz said his fiscal policies have held down inflation and substantially improved Israel's balance of payments situation.

NEW YORK (WNS) -- The constitutional guarantee of separation of church and state - the cornerstone of America's religious liberty - is being weakened by recent court rulings and local government actions, according to a nationwide survey prepared by the Anti - Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. The findings reveal a disturbing trend of officially instituted religious activity in the nation's public schools which violates the constitutional rights of persons who do not wish to participate in such religious practices.

years he held East Jerusalem Jews were not allowed to pray at the Western Wall and Jewish synagogues and cemeteries were systematically destroyed.

It is time the U.S. dropped its romantic view of the Jordanian monarch and recognizes him for what he is, another despot who wants to remain in power by any means possible.

FOUR JEWS WIN 1980 NOBEL PRIZES

WASH. (WNS) -- Four American Jews, a physiologist, two chemists and economist, are among the 1980 Nobel Prize winners. The first of the four to be announced by the Swedish Royal Academy in Stockholm was Dr. Baruj Benaceraff, a Venezuelan - born American citizen engaged in research at Harvard University on how genetic makeup determines whether a person successfully combats cancer and other diseases. He shared the $211,000 Nobel Prize in physiology with George Snell, 76, of the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine, and Jean Dausett, 64, of the Immunological Laboratory of St. Louis Hospital of Paris University, France, for their discoveries on "genetically determined structures on the cell surface that regular immunological reactions."

Benaceraff, a professor of pathology at Harvard Medical School, said he believes he is the first Sephardic Jew to receive the Nobel Prize. He is a member of the Board of Governors of the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot, Israel. Benaceraff, who was 60 on Oct. 29, was born in Caracas and came to the United States in 1940. He lives in Boston with his wife, Annette.

The two Jews winning the Nobel Prize for Chemistry are Paul Berg, 54, of Stanford University, and Walter Gilbert, 48, of Harvard. They split the $215,000 prize with Frederick Sanger, 62, of Cambridge University. The Swedish Academy said Berg was cited for biochemical studies of nucleic acids and Gilbert and Sanger for having independently developed different methods which determine the exact sequence of the nucleotide building blocks. Their work is involved in genetic engineering. Berg, who was born in New York City, is the son of Harry Berg and the late Sara Brodsky, both of whom immigrated to the United States from Kiev. He lectured at the Weizmann Institute in 1971. Gilbert, who was born in Boston, is the maternal grandson of the late Joseph Cohen, who was editor of the Frie Arbeiter Shtimme, an Anarchist Yiddish newspaper in New York in the early 1900s. He is the son - in - law of journalist I.F. Stone.
