hour meeting they had discussed "at length" Israel's opposition to the U.S. supplying Saudi Arabia with additional fueling tanks and bomb racks for the 60 F-15 jets the Saudis have bought from the U.S.

"There is an ongoing dialogue which will continue," Haig said. Shamir said Israel "explained clearly our position" and stressed it "opposes" selling the Saudis the added equipment. The Israelis are reportedly asking for additional military equipment to maintain the Israeli - Arab arms balance. The Reagan Administration has informed Israel that it will receive the same aid in the next fiscal year as it receives this year: $1.4 billion in military aid and $785 million in economic assistance.

Meanwhile eight members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have sent President Reagan a letter asking him not to deliver the refueling tanks and bomb racks to the Saudis. The letter was signed by Sens. Alan Cranston (D. Calif.), Joseph Biden (D. Del.), Christopher Dodd (D. Conn.), John Glenn (D. Ohio), Paul Scarbanes (D. Md), Paul Tsongas (D. Mass.), Claiborne Pell (D. R.I.) and Larry Pressler (R. S.D.)

YALE GETS GRANTS FOR JUDAIC PROGRAMS

NEW HAVEN (WNS) -- A campaign to raise $6 million for a new Judaic studies program at Yale University has begun with three gifts totaling $1.6 million. Yale president A. Bartlett Giamatti has named Geoffrey Hartman, Karl Young Professor of English and Comparative Literature at Yale, and William Horowitz, former chairman of the Connecticut State Board of Education and a retired Fellow of the Yale Corporation (University board of trustees), as co-chairmen of a national development committee to raise the funds for the program in the undergraduate College and the Graduate School.

The university said the gifts so far are $1 million from an anonymous donor to endow a professorship in the history of Judaism; $300,000 from Robert Weiss vice president, treasurer and director of Weiss Markets, Inc., of Sunbury, Pennsylvania, to fund a teaching position in Biblical studies and $200,000 in a bequest from Mrs. Leo Links to support scholarship in Judaic studies.

The late Leo Links came to New Haven from Austria and attended Yale with scholarship aid, graduating in 1907. Weiss, a 1941 graduate of Yale, is also a member of the national development committee.

Dear Friends,

Some people say "Money isn't important," and it isn't for those who have plenty of it. I've noticed though, there's one thing money won't buy and that's poverty.

Over the past 30 years, knowledgeable people have concluded that continuous inflation, now in excess of 12% annually, has proven that the so-called guaranteed or fixed dollar programs, like cash value insurance, government bonds, bank accounts, annuities, etc., only provide a safe way for you to lose your money (i.e., purchasing power).

Sure, it's wise to have some cash on hand for emergencies, plus low cost term insurance, to protect your family. In addition to these basic requirements, we also need to have money invested where we can enjoy:

1. Profits in excess of the inflation rate
2. Safety
3. Liquidity
4. Tax advantages
5. Worldwide marketability

I'd like to show you how "diamond banking" is trouble-free property that meets the above requirements, and why Americans are rapidly turning to wholesale diamond investments to solve their future financial problems.

In the near future most Americans will own at least some investment diamonds for ultimate protection. As a specialist in the field, I want you to know why. Contact me at my office at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,
Art Burden
