

FEMALE NAZI FACES COURT

BONN (WNS) -- A court in Duesseldorf is considering the fate of former New York resident Hermine

Ryan, 61, accused of mass murder while she was a Nazi concentration campguard, it was reported. She has been identified by former inmates of Maidanek as having participated in the execution of women and children and the selection of prisoners for the gas chambers at the camp in Nazi occupied Poland. Ryan's trial has lasted five-and-a-half years in what has now become the longest Nazi war crimes trial.

She is accused with eight other former SS guards. Ryan married an American after World War II and was extradited from the U.S. almost eight years ago.

A defense lawyer has asked the court to free Ryan claiming that witnesses had not proved that she had taken part in the alleged atrocities and could not make a positive identification. The lawyer also tried to get her acquitted on grounds that she was being tried twice for the same crime.

Ryan was sentenced to three years in prison by a court in Vienna in 1946 on charges which included torture and mistreatment in concentration camps she worked in since 1939 before being transferred to Maidanek.
