

CAESAR'S PRESIDENT LAUDED FOR SECRET WITNESS PROGRAM

BEGIN FORMS NEW GOVERNMENT

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Despite last ditch haggling by Likud's small prospective partner, the National Religious Party Aguda and Tami, Premier Menachem Begin presented his new government to the Knesset recently. Sources within the government were reported to have expressed confidence that Begin's repeated assertions that he would not ask for a second 21 - day period allotted to him to form a new government to which he is entitled under law had the desired softening upon the partners.

Each of the small parties seemed on the verge of giving that little bit that could make a compromise possible on issues that bothered them.

Tami was expected to agree reluctantly to NRP's Yosef Burg taking over the Religious Ministry -- with the explicit undertaking on his part that he would not "purge" followers of Aharon Abu Hatzeira, Tami leader, from the religious establishment. In return for giving way on this sticky point, Tami was expected to be awarded one or even two deputy ministerships, so that Tami's three Knesset members will all emerge from the coalition talks with government posts. Abu Hatzeira is slated for the important Labor and Social Welfare Ministry.

Aguda is expected to accept Begin's compromise proposal on "Who Is a Jew" whereby the coalition will undertake to amend the Law of Return within two years.
