"One Man Plus The Truth Constitutes A Majority"

almost consumed him, he nursed and nurtured the protection and welfare of his family. In the troubled world we live in these days, there was no problem that Larry wasn't prepared to take on if it concerned his family, and perhaps this was the very strength he needed to endure.

The story is told of an old man who was seen working feverishly to complete the planting of a tree in his garden. A voice called out, "Old man, why are you working so hard? You probably won't be around to enjoy the fruits this tree may bear." The old man replied, "That is true, I won't be here, but my children and their children will be; and so perhaps the world by then will be just a little better place to live in." This is Jewish philosophy. This is Jewish thinking. And Larry fulfilled that great heritage to his very last days. He was truly a patriarch in every sense of the word.

But if the family was uppermost in his mind, he never forgot the biblical injunction of equating charity with prayer. Larry was a strong Jew.

He was determined that the Jewishness of his people become a part of his zeal to perpetuate the State of Israel. He was a Zionist before Israel realized statehood.

In 1948 when Israel was fighting for recognition as a state at that great rally in Madison Square Garden, he was there.

In June of 1968, he was now in Las Vegas and when Hank and Jerry called for rally unto the cause, he was there.

In the Yom Kippur War, in the rally that followed in this very sanctuary, he was there.

But that is not to say that Larry was not ready to give of himself materially or otherwise in the interest of any cause that required his interest and his help. The United Way, Muscular Dystrophy Drive, Federated Jewish Appeal, American Cancer Society, City of Hope and countless others were on his list to be remembered.

Only two days before his passing on, he was anticipating the Anti - Defamation League Luncheon just recently held.

And so this devotion to family and obligation to charity carried with it a deep concern for people. Reference to "Thou shalt not turn, neither friend, nor stranger, from your house" was well received by Larry. At the traditional Friday night dinner at his home, invariably, stranger as well as friend was present and his beloved Annie was always there to serve. This was the mark of a man with compassion and concern for all who crossed his path. He had the charm, the charisma that drew people to him and he loved it. He wanted to get involved and he reveled in its resolution. He was truly a man for all seasons.

Larry knew that in order for one to be a meaningful Jew, one had to become involved with synagogue, with a house of worship.

This very temple became part and parcel of his life. He made me a member of this temple; and on Kol Nidre Night he was proud to not only hold, but vow to uphold the Torah he held high in his hands.

Inevitable, he said, "We begin it all here in this temple with the ritual of circumcision, and end it all in this temple with the mourner's prayer, Kaddish.

Yes, the song is ended, but the melody lingers on; and that rhapsody that Larry wove into a sonata of regard and love for people will forever live on in our hearts.

In the end, what greater inscription can one have carved on his tombstone than the simple words, "LARRY SNOW -- HE WAS A GOOD MAN."

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- Hefzibah Sharvit, a 37-year-old mother of four children, from Petach Tikvah, entered a local hospital and within hours found herself the mother of nine children when she gave birth to quintuplets.

Worldwide Relations

BY DR. DAVID HYATT
 PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIANS AND JEWS

History is our witness to the senseless destruction of human life, so often because of illogical religious hatred, declared Dr. David Hyatt, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in a message for the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, and Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Dr. Hyatt, a Catholic, and head of the 82-office nationwide human relations organization, added:

"Today we have only to look at what is transpiring in the Middle East, Northern Ireland or Iran for modern proof.

"The Jewish High Holy Days of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur provide an opportune time for people of all religious beliefs to remember that we are all members of one human family."

Hyatt said that the NCCJ joins with Jewish communities around the world "in penitent meditation over the sad state of worldwide human relations."

He cited the continuing worldwide acts of terrorism, calling them insane and "completely outside the realm of civilized humanity." He also noted that houses of worship were no longer sacred, recalling another terrorist attack on a synagogue in Vienna.

"Rosh Hashanah, the New Year 5742, is a time for renewal and reaffirmation; a time for forgiving; a time for sharing," Hyatt said. "Our Jewish brethren take this solemn time not only to look back on how they have served their faith, but to think about the future and about how they can enhance the lives of the people with whom they live, work, and socialize.

"It is the hope of all members of the National Conference of Christians and Jews that the New Year will mark a period of peace, freedom and security for Jews around the world, and that mutual respect, compassion, truth and dialogue will be the cornerstones for resolving disputes."

Behind The Scenes

At The United Nations

Assembly President

UNITED NATIONS (WUP) -- For the first time in UN history, the election of an Assembly President resulted by a drawing of lots. Real drama pervaded this world body the opening day of the 36th session of the General Assembly as its 154 members -- another state, Vanuata formerly the New Hebrides was later admitted as the 155th member -- appeared split between three Asian candidates, K. Mohammed Kaiser of Bangladesh, Ismat Kittani of Iraq and Tommy T. B. Koh of Singapore.

On the first ballot, Kaiser mustered 46 votes, Kittani 64 and Koh 40. No one obtaining a majority, a second ballot was called and high tension electrified the Hall as everyone awaited the results. It was a tie between Kittani and Kaiser, each receiving 73 votes. The Temporary President, Ambassador von Wechmar, appeared in somewhat of a dilemma as he told the Assembly that it was faced 'with a unique situation.' He noted that rule 93 of the rules of procedure stated that 'If in the second ballot the votes are equally divided, and a majority is required, the President shall decide between the candidates by drawing lots' between the two receiving the highest votes.

Delegates and spectators gasped as Kittani's name was drawn.

The same evening Henry Kissinger, appearing as the main speaker at the Annual Gala dinner of the American Associates of the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, surprised everyone by saying something which he could well have said when he served as Secretary - of - State -- a vital message which may have an impact on The White House today.

In a lengthy speech he declared that he stood firmly against American talks with the PLO even if the terrorist organization would fulfil the two conditions mentioned in the U.S. - Israeli 1975 Memorandum, namely even if Arafat and his terrorists would recognize Israel and accept UN Resolution 242.

"A PLO state," Kissinger said, "would have a destabilizing influence in the area, especially on Jordan; the Middle East does not need a new radical Arab state," he emphasized.
