

FIRST CLASS GRADUATES FROM MEDICAL SCHOOL

Thirty young men and women shared the distinction of being the very first to receive M.D.'s from the Faculty of Medicine, Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, at graduation ceremonies which took place in Beersheva, Israel, recently.

The decision of two-thirds of the graduating class to serve in the developing communities of the Negev during their first year of practice, represents a major milestone for the innovative teaching program of the University Center for Health Sciences which has as its goal the training of "a new kind of physician" -- doctors who will be attracted to careers in primary care and community medicine, where they are desperately needed.

Conference on Media

A significant conference devoted to the theme of "Television and Social Change in the 1980s," took place recently in Princeton, New Jersey. Sponsored by NBC-TV, the conference brought together the network's key executives with leaders of major religious, ethnic, racial and professional groups to examine the quality of NBC's programs, their moral or social content, and possible means of improving communication between the various public interest groups and the network.

It was not an easy conference for NBC's leadership, nor would it have been for any network since all face the same issues. First, tough discussions took place on such vital subjects as the treatment of sex, violence, obscenity and drugs on TV programs.
