

U.S. TO VOTE AGAINST FAHD PLAN

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Should Saudi Arabia introduce Crown Prince Fahd's eight-point plan at the United Nations, the United States will vote against it, Jeane Kirkpatrick, the United States Ambassador to the United Nations declared to some 2,500 people at the Dialogue Center here as a guest of the Dialogue Forum Series.

She pointed out that President Reagan "made it quite clear that we are fully committed to the Camp David accords," adding that the President's view will be "reflected" at the UN should the Saudis seek UN involvement in their plan.

Kirkpatrick stressed the Reagan Administration's commitment to the Camp David accords. She claimed that continued accusations that the Administration is not fully behind Camp David can only do harm to the process, itself and may originate with the enemies of Camp David. She said that the U.S. is committed to Israel "as an ally as well as a friend. Israel's security and survival, she contended is dependent on the development of stability in the region, and this is the goal of American policy.

The U.S. Ambassador also said that terrorism is a "very important threat" to freedom and democracy. She said there is "an international network of terrorism," which includes the Soviet Union, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization. The purpose of this international network, she said is to destroy the free democratic societies through revolution. She said that Israel faces "terrorist provocations in the West Bank" which make life virtually "unbearable," and therefore forces the Israeli government to apply strict measures in dealing with the population there.

Kirkpatrick, who answered questions by the program's moderator, Rabbi William Berkowitz, spiritual leader of

LAS VEGAS ISRAELITE

Congregation Bnai Jeshurun and president of the Jewish National Fund, said that the U.S. is "justified" in "cultivating" good relations with Saudi Arabia for the purpose of "re-enforcing and building a regional stability in the area."
