

RABBIS AGAINST MORAL MAJORITY

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (WNS) -- Rabbi Seymour Cohen, the out-going president of the Rabbinical Assembly, criticized organizations within the Conservative branch of Judaism for failing to deal with a broad range of social action issues. He also urged Conservative rabbis to mobilize in opposition to the Moral Majority and particularly, Sen. Jesse Helms (R, NC), who he charged was trying to undermine the authority of the Supreme Court on such issues as bus-ing, abortion and public school prayer. Cohen, of Anshe Emer Synagogue in Chicago, speaking at the 82nd annual convention of the Conservative rabbinical group declared that the 1,200 Conservative rabbis it represents in the U.S. and abroad, must "arouse the conscience of our people and others to fight these groups who are threatening the power of the highest judicial authority in our nation."

He noted in that connection that Helms and his colleagues and the Moral Majority among others were trying to "limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court by taking cases relating to these issues out of their hands and putting them in the state courts where more favorable decisions, from their point of view, would be attained." Failing that, Helms and these groups are seeking a Constitutional amendment. "They are prepared to follow a variety of tactics to achieve their goals even if they change the Constitution without amending it," he said.

Rabbi Arnold Goodman, of Agudath Jer-husun Congregation, Minneapolis, was elected president of the Rabbinical Assem-bly, succeeding Cohen. A nationally known educator, author and authority on consti-tutional law, Goodman holds a law degree from DePaul Uni-versity.

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Resurgent anti-Semitism in France could escalate into a threat to the native French Jewish community in the event of a political or economic crisis, according to a 480-page study by the French scholar Eric Benmergui, which is summarized in the latest issue of "Euro-facts," published by the Paris office of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. The report pinpointed the upsurge in anti-Jewish feeling to the aftermath of the Six-Day War in 1967, and declared that one of the real causes of present day anti-Semitism is the rise and increasing influence of rightwing extremist elements in the country.

ANTI-SEMITISM RISES IN FRANCE

Furthermore, Jews are threatened by terrorists from both the right and left, who sometimes join forces, the study said, citing
