ARIEL SHARON TALKS OF TERRORISM, WEAPONS

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who arrived in the United States recently for meetings with representatives of American Jewish organizations, continued throughout the latter part of his visit to stress Israel's growing concern over United States arms deals in Arab countries, particularly what is reported to be the Administration's imminent proposal to sell advanced weaponry to Jordan.

The Israeli Defense Minister met with Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger for hours of talks and as he emerged, Sharon emphasized what he considered threats to peace in the region. These threats are Arab terrorism; the supply of modern weapons to Arab countries, especially Jordan; and what he called a "new coalition" being formed around Iraq, with Jordan and Saudi Arabia and with the "support" of Egypt and possible backing by the U.S. He denied he was charging that Egypt is a threat to peace.

Sharon, who stressed that he was invited to the Pentagon during his brief private visit to the U.S., said that there had been no discussion of the memorandum of understanding on strategic cooperation between the United States and Israel which Sharon and Weinberger signed last December. The Fight That Saved Las Vegas

BY DON TELL

Imagine a sagebrush rolling down Las Vegas Boulevard South, past monuments of a lost era. Hotels and casinos which once lured millions of visitors to a brilliance of sparkling lights now stand idle. Thousands of slot machines are lined up as dark reminders of another place and time. Hundreds of blackjack, crap and poker tables only playing host to the webs of many spiders. Sound absurd?

Well it is not probable but it sure looks possible when the vacancy signs stay lit during a Memorial Day Weekend like the one just past. What usually served as the gala kickoff to a bustling summer business turned out to be a busy but not very exciting weekend. Seems like another grim reminder that the nation's economic problems have caught up with business in Las Vegas. Companies have tightened their belts, so visitors are allotted smaller expense accounts and naturally less money for gambling. People are out of work and those still with jobs are a little more unsure of the future and prefer staying home. The high cost of air travel and gasoline haven't helped either. By the time the average visitor pays travel expenses, checks in to his $60 and higher rooms, has a bite to eat for $40 and dresses up for a $100 show -- what is left?

Ah, but there is hope on the horizon. There is a glimmering light at the end of the tunnel. There is an event that will literally force thousands of visitors to come into Las Vegas. The savior, of course, is the Holmes - Cooney fight set for June 11 at Caesars Palace.

This is the one electric extravaganza that will make Las Vegas the focal point for millions of people around the world. Never before have so many people from all walks of life focused in
