Dear Mike:

Why are our Marines in Lebanon? This is the question that must be asked after reading the news articles of Israel Defense Forces/U.S. Marine confrontations over the last several weeks. In recent days, American authorities have made conflicting claims. On the one hand, they claim there are no armed Palestinians moving through the U.S. controlled territory. On the other hand, American officials have been quoted as saying it is NOT the Marines' mission to prevent PLO infiltration.

These statements explain why the Israeli forces and the American Marines have had uncomfortable difficulties over suspected PLO movements through territory under U.S. Marine Corps control. However, the purpose of the Marines' presence in Lebanon is unclear. If American forces are to help the Lebanese government reestablish

NAVON WILL NOT SEEK RE-ELECTION

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- President Yitzhak Navon announced that he will not seek re-election when his five-year term expires next May and would retire to private life. "I do not intend to ask the Knesset to elect me to another term and I do not plan or intend to enter political life," Navon told a press conference at the Presidential residence. He said he would devote his time to writing books and to social and educational work which he did not specify. He said he had concluded, after long and difficult deliberations that he could not fulfill the office of President for another five years.

sovereignty and to prevent further conflicts they can hardly achieve this goal by turning a blind eye to terrorists.

Sincerely,
Stanley N. Zwaik

Although Navon, a former Labor MK, said specifically that he would not enter politics after leaving office, many observers believe that he has set for himself a "cooling off" period after which he may reconsider political activity.
