meet keeps the show-room clapping, laughing, and whistling for more. It's been said the Mickey Finn Show "packs more fun per dollar than any show in town."

Mickey got his start in the business playing ragtime piano in pizza parlors and San Francisco nightclubs while still in high school and college.

At 21, he opened his own Roaring 20's nightclub in San Diego which was to become over the 14 years of operation the most successful spot of its type in the country. NBC recognized the magic of the place and put it on the network as a summer series.

In 1974, the Finn family moved to Las Vegas to be nearer the mainstream of the entertainment business. Besides headlining at Caesars Palace, the Sands, the Frontier, the Aladdin, and the Landmark (all in Las Vegas) plus, of course, his record breaking six year run at the Union Plaza, Mickey Finn has done a lot of TV work. SHCHARANSKY ENDS HUNGER STRIKE

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Imprisoned Soviet Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky, currently completing the fifth year of a 13-year sentence at the notorious Chistopol Prison, has ended his nearly five-month hunger strike to protest the denial of mail and visits from members of his family, privileges allowed to other prisoners, the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry (SSSJ) and the Union of Councils of Soviet Jews (UCSJ) confirmed here February 16.

According to the SSSJ and the UCSJ, this information was revealed in a letter Shcharansky wrote, dated February 7 and received February 15 by his mother, Ida Milgrom, in Moscow, that he had resumed eating on January 14. Since then, the letter said, he has been receiving food with vitamins and slowly regaining some weight. But Shcharansky wrote that he continues to suffer from severe heart pains and is unable to participate in the half hour of daily exercise in the prison courtyard, which is the only exercise the inmates receive, the Soviet Jewish group reported.

Shcharansky ended his hunger strike, which he began on September 27, after he received two heavily censored notes from his mother who in January tried in vain to see him personally. According to published reports, Mrs. Milgrom was denied access to her son because Shcharansky was still on a hunger strike. But on January 14, the prison officials permitted an exchange of notes, and it was this exchange that is reported to have prompted the Soviet Jewish activist to end his hunger strike. There have been recent reports that Shcharansky had ended his place (4 appearances), NBC Summer Series, (13), Andy Williams (3), Jonathan Winters ABC Series, Dinah Shore Show, Mike Douglas (3), Merv Griffin (4), John Davidson (5), Jerry Lewis Telethon (6), and FIVE Mickey Finn

There have been recent reports that Shcharansky had ended his strike, notably through a letter Yuri Andropov, First Secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, wrote to French Communist Party secretary general George Marchais stating that Shcharansky ended his strike, was in contact with his mother, and that "he is in satisfactory condition and nothing seems to threaten his life." The letter was published on January 24 in the French Communist Party organ, L'Humanite.

I KNOW WE SHOULD GO TO THE FUNERAL HOME

BUT, I NEVER KNOW WHAT TO SAY.

The fact is that nothing can be said to express adequately our loss or make the bereaved family feel better. But that doesn't mean that a visit and an expression of sympathy won't be helpful. Bereaved persons tell us that it's not the words that are helpful but that someone cared enough to go to the funeral home and express their sympathy in person. Sometimes just a hug or holding your friend's hand briefly is a good way to say "I care." When a friend loses a loved one go to the funeral home. Express your sympathy and offer your assistance. You'll be appreciated for caring.
