Benjamin Cohen Dead At 88

NEW YORK (WNS) — Benjamin Cohen, one of the principal architects of President Roosevelt's New Deal, who died in Washington at the age of 88, was lauded by the American Jewish Committee as "a dedicated public servant and statesman who served his nation and the Jewish people during a career that spanned seven decades." The Muncie-born member of Roosevelt's "brain trust" served as council to the American Zionist Peace Conference from 1919 to 1921, representing the Zionist movement as secretary of the Zionist delegation at the Treaty of Versailles negotiations. He died of Pneumonia in Georgetown University Hospital. Funeral services were private.
