Nevada's Got It

Remnants of Nevada's gold and silver mining boomtowns survive all over the Nevada desert in living ghost towns. Some, like Belmont, are still home for folks who like the desert solitude. Photo by Jason Rubinstein.

Effort To Block PLO
Inclusion In Sports
Federation Underway

CARACAS, Venezuela federation will support (WNS) — Reacting to reports that the Pan American Gymnastic Con-

Federation, the Venezuelan Jewish community has asked national governmental and sporting authorities to help block this development, according to a WJC report.

According to this report, the president of the Pan American Confederation, Jorge Ochoa, upon his return from the organization's meeting in Havana, told reporters that the majority of the organization's affiliated countries would vote for the inclusion of "Palestine" in the international federation. Participants at the Havana meeting were the national federations of Brazil, Colombia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, and Venezuela.

In response, the Confederation of Jewish Associations of Venezuela, the representative body of Venezuelan Jewry here, immediately sent a letter to Dr. Milena Sardi, Minister of Youth in Venezuela, as well as to Domingo Eduardo Vina, president of the National Sports Institute.

The letter, signed by the Jewish Confederation's president, Walter Czenstochowski, and its secretary-general, Max Kreisler, request intervention so that the Venezuelan Gymnastics Federation does not lend its support to the proposed inclusion of "Palestine."

I KNOW
WE SHOULD GO TO THE FUNERAL HOME

BUT, I NEVER KNOW WHAT TO SAY.

The fact is that nothing can be said to express adequately our loss or make the bereaved family feel better. But that doesn't mean that a visit and an expression of sympathy won't be helpful. Bereaved persons tell us that it's not the words that are helpful but that someone cared enough to go to the funeral home and express their sympathy in person. Sometimes just a hug or holding your friend's hand briefly is a good way to say "I care." When a friend loses a loved one go to the funeral home. Express your sympathy and offer your assistance. You'll be appreciated for caring.
