A Sefer Torah, originally belonging to the Young Israel of Williamsburg, has been brought to the newest Young Israel in Israel, located in the Old

City of Jerusalem just a few yards from the Western Wall, by Rabbi Solomon Sharfman, Rabbi Emeritus of the Young Israel of Flatbush. The Sefer Torah had been in the care of Joe King, the late founder of contemporary Jewish music, who had looked after the affairs of the Young Israel of Williamsburg for many years, and who passed away a few weeks ago. Through the offices of the Eretz Israel Commission of the National Council of Young Israel, Joe's son, Jerry King, transferred the Sefer Torah to Rabbi Sharfman in the presence of the Chairman of the Eretz Israel Commission, Jack Forsash, just prior to Rabbi Sharfman's departure to go on Aliyah and settle in Jerusalem.

The Young Israel synagogue receiving the Sefer Torah is located in the old Chazon Synagogue building in the Jewish Quarter of the Old City of Jerusalem, at 3 Rechov Hamekubalim. It is under the direction of Rabbi Nachman Kahane, and it holds daily minyanim and shiurim open to all. It is being adopted by members of the Young Israel of Flatbush.

The transfer of the Sefer Torah is the latest example of the generous support provided by American Young Israel synagogues and their members for the growing Young Israel movement in Israel. Mr. Forsash announced the beginning of a national membership drive by the Eretz Israel Commission of the National Council of Young Israel, which will culminate in simultaneous appeals in Young Israel synagogues from coast to coast on behalf of the Young Israelis in Israel on Saturday, November 3 (Parshas Lech L'cha).

minutes to fill a shopping cart with grocery items of their choice.

More than $2,500 in groceries were collected, with Valley Bank picking up the tab.

Winners were drawn from participants in a demonstration of the bank's new Automated Teller Machines (ATM's) in all Skaggs Alpha Beta stores.

The bank is the first in Nevada to offer their customers the convenience of ATM's in supermarkets. The machines are capable of handling cash withdrawals, transfers between accounts, automated payments and balance inquiries.

"The new ATM's in Skaggs Alpha Beta stores will allow customers to obtain cash when and where they need it. We are providing an additional service to our customers by making it possible for them to obtain cash where they shop," stated Richard Taggart, Senior Executive Vice President of Valley Bank.

Winners of the drawing who participated in the sweepstakes were Frances Warren, Eddie Katsovitz and Alfred Palmer.
