Congregation Ner Tamid's Dalitz Religious School has started its new year in the Temple's new facility according to Principal Eileen Kollins. The many new families joining the congregation has swelled the student population.

Plans for the new year include a fall reading contest commemorating Jewish Book Month. Mrs. Kollins announced that this year the contest will be expanded so that students will have the option of designing book covers in addition to the book reports they submitted in the past.

The principal said, "One event that comes early in the year is always a highlight to the students. We will again build a sukka on our Temple's property. Twelve months ago we did the same thing, but the sukka was the only thing on an empty field. Now it will be next to our beautiful building." She added that although students in the Hebrew School are going to do the construction, other students are invited to help.

Mrs. Kollins also reminded students and parents that Simchat Torah Services, scheduled for Oct. 19, will honor all new students from kindergarten through eighth grade.

ALOPECIA? (Hair Loss). A support group is being formed in Las Vegas. We would like you to be a part of this group and help to start it on its way. Please call me, Stacey, for more information, at 384-3562 or 731-1029.
