

Mrs. Sadat:
Peace With Israel
Most Important
For Egypt and Israel

GENEVA (WNS) — Jihan Sadat, widow of the late President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, is convinced her husband was assassinated because of his courage in signing a peace treaty with Israel.

"But if it were today to repeat itself, I would not keep him from doing so as the peace with Israel was the most important thing for both Egypt and Israel," Mrs. Sadat said in an interview published in the Swiss weekly, Bouquet.

Sadat was gunned down by his own troops during a parade on October 6, 1981. Mrs. Sadat was quoted as saying, "I am ready to pay with my life for the continuation of peace between Egypt and Israel as did my late husband, Anwar el-Sadat."

president of the Franco-Israeli Parliamentary Friendship Group, Jean Poperen, both stressed that the welcome given to Peres symbolized France's warm feelings for Israel.

Peres landed at Orly Airport where a company of Presidential guards presented arms. A military band played Israel's national anthem, Hatikva, and France's Premier Laurent Fabius personally welcomed the visitor.

Peres said that France ranks as one of Israel's major allies — "Israel needs and now has two major allies — the United States of America and France," Peres declared in response to a toast at a banquet given in his honor by Fabius. Peres and Fabius stressed at the banquet the renewal of the Franco-Israeli "special relationship" after a 20 year break.

"France is and will remain loyal to her friends, I welcome our friend Shimon Peres, Prime Minister of our friend, Israel," Fabius declared before the dinner guests.

Peres met with President Francois Mitterrand on December 6 to discuss Franco-Israel relations. Subjects also discussed included Lebanon, the European Economic Community and especially the Israeli government's new hopes to launch a peace initiative with Jordan. Peres, diplomatic observers say, will probably ask for Mitterrand's help in getting this process started.

But the most interest aroused here since Peres' arrival centered on reports that he and Fabius had discussed the purchase by Israel of a nuclear power station manufactured in France. It was said to have been one of the bilateral subjects that came up during the 45 minute private meeting the two premiers had December 5. Fabius confirmed to reporters that the sale of a power station had been discussed. He refused to specify the type of generator but he did not rule out nuclear power.
