Rise In Neo-Nazi Groups' Membership Reported In West Germany

BONN (WNS) — The Bonn government released a report disclosing that as of 1984 there were 89 neo-Nazi and extreme rightwing organizations active in the Federal Republic, with a combined membership of 22,000, a 10 percent increase both in the number of organizations and in their membership.

These groups have shown an increased tendency to resort to violence and are a potential source of subversive activities which are relatively difficult to monitor, the report, prepared by the government Agency for the Protection of the Constitution, stated. It also devoted a section to Palestinian terrorist organizations operating in West Germany.

According to the report, many of the 89 organizations have a membership of only a few activists. The largest and most dangerous are the "German Peoples Union" with more than 12,000 members, led by Gerhard Frey, publisher of the Munich-based neo-Nazi weekly National Zeitung; and the National Democratic Party (NPD) with a membership of about 6,000. About a decade ago, the NPD participated in national, state and local elections.

A notable omission from the report is HIAG, the umbrella organization of veterans of the Nazi SS and Waffen SS divisions which hold annual reunions, usually in small resort towns.

The SS "Totenkopf" (Deaths Head) division alumni held their get-together recently in the Bavarian town of Nesselwang, at a hotel owned by a neo-Nazi activist. Veterans of the "Hitlerjugend" and "Leib standarte Adolf Hitler" divisions are meeting in Nesselwang later this month.
