

U.S Says There Is No Agreement On Use Of Saudi Airbases

WASHINGTON (WNS) — The Reagan Administration maintained that while the U.S. has no agreement with Saudi Arabia allowing the U.S. to use Saudi military bases in case of an military emergency, the "long-standing relationships" between the two countries has resulted in such requests being honored. But State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb, in making the statement, could give no example of when the Saudis had agreed to such a request in order to aid a U.S. mission rather than just a Saudi need. Kalb also indicated that the Administration was close to announcing new arms sales for Saudi Arabia and Jordan. But here, too, he would not be specific. The Administration's statement came after a report in The New York Times that Richard Murphy, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, has given members of Congress a memorandum which states that the Saudis will allow the U.S. to use its bases in case of "aggression" by the Soviet Union or if Saudi Arabia was unable to handle a situation in the Persian Gulf. The memorandum was a 17-page summary of the administration's recently completed study of arms sales to the Middle East. Kalb refused to comment directly on the newspaper story. But he said "Saudi Arabia has no agreement with the U.S. on the use of Saudi military facilities. However, we have long-standing relationships based on mutual interests in the stability of the region. When U.S. assistance has been requested and provided in response to specific threats, the facilities necessary to support such assistance have been made available."
