Peres: Inaction On Peace Could Jeopardize Unity Government

JERUSALEM (WNS) — Premier Shimon Peres told the Knesset Security and Foreign Affairs Committee that the existence of the national unity government could be in jeopardy if the government fails to take decisive action on several key issues.

His remarks came amid growing tension between the Labor and Likud parties especially on such issues as the Taba dispute with Egypt; the current attempts to expand the Jewish presence in the Arab quarter of Hebron; relations with Egypt; and the joint Jor-

Israel Delays Sending New Envoy To South Africa

JERUSALEM (WNS) — Israel is delaying sending its new Ambassador to South Africa. Ronni Milo, Deputy Foreign Minister, said that Israel has not yet decided when the Ambassador would take up his post in Pretoria. Israel's current Ambassador, Eliahu Lankin, is to end his term and return to Israel at the end of October. The delay in naming a new envoy was not officially linked to Israel's criticism of apartheid. Premier Shimon Peres recently told the Cabinet that the government of Israel "unconditionally disassociates itself from South Africa's apartheid government. The State of the Jewish people will not accept discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, or any other grounds."

danian-Palestinian delegation proposed for talks with the United States.

This was Peres' first expression of doubt as to the survivability of the unity government. In recent weeks, several ministers and other leaders of the Labor Party have raised similar doubts, but Peres remained quiet on the issue.

Peres issued a stern warning to the Knesset committee that another round in the Arab-Israeli war could break out if the peace process continues without reaching some conclusion. "If the Arab world realizes within a given period of time that there are no prospects for a settlement," Peres said, "a new war-oriented Arab coalition may be formed, a result of Arab despair. We must prevent such a coalition, we must prevent the phenomena of despair and disappointment."

According to Peres, this also applies to Egypt. He said that all Israelis — regardless of their political leanings — will regret the failure of improving relations with Egypt.
