

Pope: Anti-Semitism Needs To Be 'Completely Wiped Out'

ROME (WMS) — Pope John Paul said at the Vatican that "anti-Semitism in its ugly and sometimes violent manifestations should be completely wiped out." He made this statement to a delegation from the International Jewish Committee on Interreligious Consultations (IJCIC) which was here for meetings with the Vatican Secretariat on Catholic-Jewish Relations in connection with the 20th anniversary of "Nostra Aetate," the Vatican II Declaration on the Jews.

The Pope, in his address, referred to a Vatican document, "Notes on the Correct Way to Present the Jews and Judaism in Preaching and Catechesis in the Roman Catholic Church" issued last June. The document was criticized by IJCIC at the time as a "retrogression" from Nostra Aetate primarily because of its failure to acknowledge the religious significance of the State of Israel to the Jewish people, and its superficial reference to the Holocaust -- the two events that have "decisively shaped the way Jews define themselves."

The Pontiff said the Church was always prepared "to revise and renew whatever in her attitudes and ways of expression happens to conform less with her own identity."

Responding to the

Pope's speech, Rabbi Mordecai Waxman, chair-person of the Synagogue Council of America, IJCIC's U.S. Secretariat, addressed himself primarily to Nostra Aetate. "The repudiation" by that declaration "of the false teaching, responsible for so much members of the American delegation at the meeting with the Pope presented him with a copy of the Kaufman Manuscript of the "Code of Maimonides" in recognition of the commemoration of the 850th anniversary of the philosopher's birth by the Jewish and the Catholic world.

spread goodwill and cheer people up. While touring agencies or the Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital, people react to her presence very positively. Faces light up when patients of the Pediatrics or Burn Care Unit see her enter the room. Evidencing her impact during one visit, she inspired one young patient to comment upon Alicia's departure, "I'll remember this day forever."
