

Levine Appointed Casino Host At The Las Vegas Hilton

Monte Levine has been named casino host at the Las Vegas Hilton, according to an announcement by Dennis Gomes, senior vice-president and director of casino operations for the resort.

Levine joins the Hilton following a position with the Desert Inn and Spa where he served as vice president of casino for eight years. With the Desert Inn, he became one of the resort's more well-known hosts catering to a nationwide clientele.

Levine has also held positions with the Aladdin Hotel as a host and the Flamingo Hilton as credit manager.

"Monte brings a wealth of knowledge to his position," Gomes said. "We're confident that he will make a significant contribution to our marketing efforts."

Levine will be responsible for establishing new customers in both the United States and Canada with the Las Vegas Hilton.

A 15-year resident of Las Vegas, he's married with two children. Levine hails from Miami, Florida.

"A View To The Future"

The faces of the children are filled with anticipation, optimism and hope - the essence of the future. It is the look that took Sandra Hindi many sessions at the canvas to capture. A collage of kids, whose activities were observed in a local park, were transferred to an original oil to be given to United Way to commemorate the 1985 Fall Campaign. Hindi, a four year resident of Las Vegas, came here to pursue a dream of being a professional painter, having retired from her former career as a financial consultant in Albuquerque, New Mexico. In addition to donating the painting to United Way, Hindi was also instrumental in coordinating the United Way volunteer participation for the filming of Rocky IV at the MGM Grand Hotel.
