Bernard Malamud Dead At 71

NEW YORK (WNS) — Bernard Malamud, the Pulitzer Prize-winning American Jewish author, died in his Manhattan apartment of natural causes. He was 71 years old.

Malamud was the author of eight novels and four collections of short stories, which, critics noted, showed the influence of both the 19th century Russian masters of fiction and the traditional Jewish story teller. His best-known and most controversial novel, "The Fixer" (1966), was the story of a handyman, Yakov Bok, falsely accused by Czarist officials of a ritual murder. The story drew very loosely on the notorious Mendel Beilis case of 1911-1913, which ended in Beilis' acquittal.

Malamud won a Pulitzer Prize as well as his second National Book Award for "The Fixer," in 1967. His first NBA was for "The Magic Barrel," a collection of short stories, in 1958. Other honors included election to the National Institute of Arts and Letters and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

1986 at 6:30 P.M. It will continue for 6 sessions and will conclude on June 8th, 1986. The cost for the class is $50 per couple. This includes all materials. The instructor is Patricia Denkberg, R.N.-B.S.N. Pat has an Associate Degree in Nursing with honors from New York City Community College and a Bachelors Degree in Nursing from University of Nevada-Las Vegas.
