

Two Terrorists Killed Three IDF Soldiers Wounded

stealth near Shouba village in the foothills of Mt. Hermon. The patrol opened fire and fire was returned, causing the casualties. Equipment and food supplies found near the bodies of the dead men indicated that they were on either a terrorist or an intelligence-gathering mission.

The sources said IDF units have recently foiled several infiltration attempts by the Syria-supported Palestine Liberation Organization dissidents led by Aby Moussa.

Meanwhile, the Israel-backed South Lebanon Army (SLA) reported that five of its men were wounded in a clash with terrorists and three of the wounded were kidnapped. The casualties occurred when an SLA post east of Jezzine came under heavy mortar fire. One of the attackers was killed in the exchange of fire. He is believed to be a member of Hezbollah, the extremist Shiite Moslem militia linked to Iran.

Distributive Education students from Clark High School have been involved in a School/Business Partnership Program with Opportunity Village and R & R Advertising.

In the program, MaryAnn Mele is teaching marketing and advertising techniques to the students in Jim Hoffman's class. In turn, the students, working closely with Opportunity Village's Linda Smith, have been marketing Opportunity Village to the Clark County School District.

The partnership has proved beneficial to both Opportunity Village and the students.

Second Conservative Woman Rabbi To Be Ordained

NEW YORK (WNS) — In a development similar to one which enabled Amy Eilberg to be ordained in May 1985 as the first Conservative woman rabbi, another woman rabbinical candidate will be ordained in graduating exercises at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America (JTS) as the second Conservative woman rabbi. She is Nina Bierber Feinstein of Dallas, Texas, a member of the incoming class of September 1984.

Eilberg, of Bloomington, Ind., was a member of the first class of women admitted to the JTS rabbinical school two years ago. Depending on a variety of factors, rabbinical training at the JTS requires four to six years of study.

Like Eilberg, Feinstein received credit for courses completed at the Jewish Theological Seminary over a period of many years, followed by her entering the rabbinical school in September 1984. She holds a JTS Masters degree in Talmud and Rabbinics, awarded in 1980.

Women had been permitted to take rabbinical school classes on the understanding that taking such studies would not qualify them for rabbinical status -- until the first class of 20 women candidates was enrolled in its JTS rabbinical school two years ago. That action capped a bitter struggle of nearly a decade within the Conservative movement, led by its rabbinical arm, the Rabbinical Assembly, to accept women for ordination as Conservative rabbis.

The total number of women in the JTS rabbinical school, as of the close of the 1985-86 academic year, was 30, including 11 who enrolled in September, 1985. One of the 11 dropped out.

Eilberg, appointed as a chaplain at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, continues to serve there.
