

Warsaw Ghetto Uprising Remembered

NEW YORK (WNS) — Several thousands persons gathered here in solemn remembrance of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising 43 years ago, and to reaffirm the commitment to never forget the martyrdom of the six million Jews who perished in the Holocaust.

"The first appeal of the dead to the living is remembrance," Abba Eban told the gathering at Madison Square Garden here. "Commemorate, transmit, explain, recount, portray; for if man has any hope of redemption, it lies in the will and implacable understanding of himself."

But at the same time, there was clearly an undercurrent of concern expressed by various speakers at the annual commemorative event sponsored by the Warsaw Ghetto Resistance Organization (WAGRO) of recent developments in Austria regarding Kurt Waldheim. In addition, Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, Binyamin Netanyahu, told the gathering that Israel will seek justice for the victims of the Holocaust. He said Israel will continue to seek broad access to all documents contained in the UN War Crimes Commission archives.

Benjamin Meed, president of WAGRO and of the American Gathering and Federation of Jewish Holocaust Survivors, released the text of a letter he sent to Attorney General Edwin Meese, asking that Waldheim be barred from the United States because of his post war-time activities. The ceremony including the lighting of six symbolic candles in memory of the six million Jews killed by the Nazis. Each candle was lit by a Holocaust survivor who was accompanied by a member of the Second Generation. Misha Raitzin, a concentration camp survivor and member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, chanted the traditional prayer for the dead, El Mole Rachamin.

Elie Wiesel, chairman of the United States Holocaust Memorial Council, spoke movingly of the Holocaust and the need to remember. "Were so many memories to be forgotten, it would be the killers ultimate victory," he declared. Messages of greetings were received from President Reagan and from Israeli President Chaim Herzog.
