New Reading Program Debuts At Hebrew Academy

The Las Vegas Hebrew Academy will be the first school in Nevada to introduce the new Scribner Reading Series, a phonics-intensive program, this fall.

According to Diane Feldman, educational representative of Scribner Educational Publishers, "Pupils who are taught to read with the series become early independent readers, build vocabulary quickly and are motivated to be active readers for life." Feldman recently visited the Las Vegas Hebrew Academy to introduce the program to faculty members. The school had previously used the Lippencott Reading program.

The Scribner Reading Series features a phonics-intensive program together with an emphasis on comprehension. The program, classroom developed and tested, consists of three-part lesson plans: "Developing Skills," "Reading For Comprehension," and "Applying And Extending Your Skills."

"The Hebrew Academy was selected for this new program because of its commitment to quality instruction," said Dr. Tamar Lubin, the school's director.

The Las Vegas Hebrew Academy has a limited number of openings for students in the fall. For registration information, contact the school office at 384-4500.

NEW YORK (WNS) — Leonid Zeliger, a 37-year-old Leningrad refusenik, has written a Hebrew textbook which was recently published in Israel. The original manuscript was brought to Israel from the Soviet Union, according to the National Conference on Soviet Jewry. The 671-page book in Russian and Hebrew is considered by scholars to be "an excellent and fundamental textbook," one which has been lacking in the Russian language.

Spiritual Thought For The Week

The wicked one borrows and does not repay but the righteous acts graciously and gives.
