

Free World Condemns Bloodiest Synagogue Massacre Since Nazi Era

NEW YORK (WNS) — The machine gun and grenade attack by two Arab terrorists on the Neve Shalom synagogue in Istanbul, Turkey, which took the lives of 21 Sabbath worshippers and wounded four, bore the stamp of the Abu Nidal gang, a dissident faction of the PLO based in Syria, according to experts on international terrorism in Israel and other countries.

Premier Shimon Peres, expressing outrage and revulsion at what was probably the bloodiest synagogue massacre since the Nazi era, vowed that "We will not rest until we cut off this murderous hand."

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir declared that "Israel has to constantly conduct an aggressive war against all the terror organizations in every place and at every time to prevent them from carrying out beastly attacks like this one."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman declared, "We condemn this cowardly attack and deeply deplore the terrible loss of life which resulted from it."

Turkish Prime Minister Turgut Ozal, who called his Cabinet into special session, issued a statement in Ankara deploring "this heinous act in a place of worship." He said "all citizens of Turkey are under the protection of the State, irrespective of their religion, language or race."

Pope John Paul II condemned the terrorist attacks on both the Pan Am jet in Karachi and the attack on the Istanbul synagogue. Speaking from a mountaintop in northwest Italy, the Pope said, "Faced with events so horrendous and almost incredible, the yearning for peace is transformed into anguish." He added that the two terrorist attacks had wounded the conscience of humanity. "Blood of brothers in travel, blood of brothers gathered in place of prayer" has been spilled, the Pontiff said. "It is necessary that without delay everything possible must be done to put an end to the unending spiral of hate and terrorism."

Greek Prime Minister

Andreas Papandreau condemned the attack while implying his nation's support of the Palestinian cause. "As you know, our government -- and I believe I may speak for all the Greek people -- condemns unhesitatingly this outrageous and (Continued on page 18)

Our new patients leave our new Children's Pavilion feeling a great deal better than when they entered.

That's not surprising when you consider Humana Hospital - Sunrise Children's Pavilion provides the most comprehensive and sophisticated care for children in all of Nevada, from the time they are born all the way through adolescence.

In our new Pediatrics Unit, we're taking care of parents, too. In addition to 24-hour visiting and sleeping-in with your child, there's even a Parents Lounge. Here you can relax, put up your feet, watch television and even take a shower or nap.

For the children, there's also supervised Play Therapy, both for diversion and education. A certified teacher, using learning aids and straightforward conversation, helps children to understand their illness, the tests and even the pain they may be experiencing. Of course, that's just part of the story. Our state-of-the-art Neonatology Unit for high-risk infants is the designated Regional Center, indicating an exceptional level of expertise.

Today, at Humana Hospital - Sunrise Children's Pavilion, over 25 pediatricians, including surgeons and other pediatric specialists, are practicing their art in a superlative facility. A neonatologist is on premises 24 hours a day and a staff of dedicated professionals—many of whom have been with us for over 10 years—is doing everything possible for the health and well-being of our young patients.

In our newly renovated facility, even the decor has been designed with the children in mind. The result is a modern, technically sophisticated hospital with a traditional philosophy of care and concern.

At the Children's Pavilion, we're making tremendous strides in caring for children's illnesses. Because we've always cared for children.

Humana Hospital - Sunrise

3186 So. Maryland Pkwy., Las Vegas, NV 89109
(702) 731-8000

Humana is a registered service mark of Humana Inc. © 1986 Humana Inc.

Humana
Bringing the human being in need into the hands of a doctor.™