Rabin Opposed To Soviet Participation In International Forum

TEL AVIV (WNS) — Defense Minister Rabin told reporters on his return from the U.S. where he met with top Administration officials and Jewish leaders, that the chances are nil for an international conference on Middle East peace because such a forum would entail Soviet participation. He said he strongly opposed Soviet involvement in Middle East peacemaking "and I don't see the U.S. excited by the idea."

Asked to comment, Rabin said "I don't think Israel has any special interest in bringing back the Soviet Union to fill any significant role in the political set-up in the Middle East." He said there was no chance of an international conference in any event because the Soviets would not agree to the conditions set by Israel -- restoration of diplomatic relations and free emigration for Soviet Jews.

Rabin maintained that the Soviets would have sabotaged the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty had they been involved in the process that led up to it. "It is worth recalling that if it had not been for the strategy worked out by (Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger in 1974, with the cooperation of Israel and Egypt, and if (President Jimmy) Carter, against his own will, had not continued that policy, we would not have achieved peace between Israel and Egypt," Rabin said. The Kissinger strategy was to exclude Moscow from negotiations after the Yom Kippur War.
