

Anti-Vandalism Bill Passed By House; Held Up In Senate

WASHINGTON (WNS) — A bill that would impose criminal penalties on anyone who damages religious property or injures persons in their free exercise of religious belief was adopted by the House by a voice vote. The bill introduced by Rep. Dan Glickman (D. Kans.), sets penalties up to life imprisonment in cases where death results, and fines up to $500,000. Sen. Arlen Specter (R. Pa.) has introduced a similar bill in the Senate. But because of Reagan Administration opposition, there is little chance it will be adopted before Congress adjourns for the election campaigns, according to a spokesman for the Senate.

The spokesperson said the Administration believes these crimes should be dealt with by state and local governments and not the federal government.

Glickman said the bill is aimed at deterring a small minority in this country "who see fit to vandalize and destroy religious property and in turn to jeopardize the freedom of others to safely practice their religious belief."

He said while the majority of these acts have been motivated by anti-Semitism, "this problem is by no means limited to the Jewish faith. The entire range of faiths, including Baptists, Catholics and Episcopal have been the targets of such acts." Glickman added that an effort must be made to "eliminate both the root of the problem and the symptoms."

"Sizzle!" Excites At The Sands

The Sands Hotel & Casino's musical revue "Sizzle!" is hot, sexy and sizzling. A bevy of dazzling topless beauties cause temperatures to rise during the spectacular production. Variety act star Cork Proctor heads up the comedy portion of the show. His lightning quick wit barely leave audiences time to catch their breath between peals of laughter. "Sizzle!" performances are nightly (except Monday) at 8, 10 and 12 in the Copa Room of the Sands.

Peres Submits His Resignation

On October 10

TEL AVIV (WNS) — Premier Shimon Peres said that he will submit his resignation to President Chaim Herzog so that Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir can take office as Prime Minister on October 14, the date set by the Labor-Likud rotation of power agreement.

Peres explained to high school students in Hadera that October 10 is the latest he can resign because the 11 is a Sabbath, the 12th is Kol Nidre night and the 13th is Yom Kippur. Therefore he will call on Herzog so that the President can ask Shamir to form a government immediately after the holidays.

According to Israeli practice, the entire Cabinet resigns with the Prime Minister. Peres said discussions will be held next week on the allocation of portfolios in the new national unity government. Few changes are expected apart from the exchange of jobs between Peres and Shamir.

Peres will make his last trip abroad as Prime Minister next week when he goes to Paris to meet with President Francois Mitterrand during ceremonies marking the opening of the Ben Gurion centennial year.
