Proceedings Pending Against Some 1,200 Suspected Nazi War Criminals In West Germany

BONN (JTA) — The federal prosecutor's office in Ludwigshaven reported that proceedings are pending against some 1,200 suspected Nazi war criminals but few if any are expected to be brought to trial because of their advanced age and the reluctance of many witnesses to testify.

The suspects are mainly former guards at Nazi concentration camps who were involved in the mass killings of Jews and others. Most of them range in age from 75 to 80 and the average age of witnesses is 73.

According to the prosecutor's office, state attorneys encountered tremendous difficulties compiling evidence against individual suspects, a process that took years in many cases. In addition, many potential witnesses refuse to testify, or suffer severe health problems or are unable to remember events or identify suspects.

If any are brought to trial, the prosecution would have to rely mainly on written testimony from other countries, mostly in Eastern Europe, and it is questionable that convincing cases could be made in those circumstances.

Nevertheless, a spokesperson for the prosecutor's office said it will continue to function as long as proceedings are pending against any suspected war criminals in West Germany.

A Medical Miracle At Laniado

Talking to her on the 51st day, she turned to Harry and said: How do you feel today? - I feel fine - Harry answered and his wife almost fainted.

Chaim Fachler, the hospital's official spokesman said: "Mr. Stein was fortunate that he was brought to Laniado, not only because of our religious commitment to the sanctity of human life but also because we were the only hospital whose nurses had not been out on strike, several time during his long hospitalization."

Mr. Harry Stein, a farmer OLEH from England received permission to attend his grandson's wedding and travelled abroad accompanied by one of Laniado medical staff.

Before his departure, a family celebration took place, attended by the staff and aids who took care of Harry Stein in Natanya.
