

Major Contribution Received By The Hebrew Academy

The Hebrew Academy recently received the largest donation to the scholarship fund in the history of the school.

The Trust Department of the First Interstate Bank notified the school it is a beneficiary of the Jean and John Sherwin Charitable and Educational Foundation.

Under the terms of the Sherwin Trust, the school will receive 20 percent of the fund's income for 25 years and will receive a similar percentage of the assets of the total Trust when it is liquidated on the 25th anniversary of its creation.

The only restriction is that the scholarships provided by the funds shall not exceed $1,000 per year per student. The anticipated income and receivable assets make this the largest financial contribution ever received by the Hebrew Academy.

New Passover Products From Manischewitz

Manischewitz has announced the introduction of two new products into their 1987 Passover line of fine foods.

The first new product is Manischewitz Gold Label Gefilte Fish. A special blend of a delicious variety of fish, plus the skillful addition of spices combine to make the first gefilte fish good enough to be called "Gold Label."

The other new Passover product is Manischewitz Blueberry Muffin Mix. These easy-to-prepare muffins are delicious for breakfast or a snack anytime of the day. Serve them fresh from the oven and your family will agree that they are "the berry best."

"delegitimization of criticism" that has evolved under President Reagan to deter it from helping to correct domestic social ills.

Leon Wieseltier, literary editor of The New Republic and a frequent writer on political issues, told leaders of the American Jewish Congress meeting here that six years of Reagan's tenure has made criticism of any aspect of American society suspect.

Reagan's main achievement since taking office has been to paper over a wide range of contradictory policies with a "belief in the primacy of enthusiasm," Wieseltier told the AJCongress 1987 National Domestic Policy Conference at the Shoreham Hotel. He said the President's emphasis on enthusiasm as a solution to all social ills has lead to the "delegitimization of criticism" and the equation of criticism with disloyalty to American society.

Wieseltier, whose topic was "1988 and Beyond: Shaping America After Reagan," said the task of the American Jewish community should be to help deal with concrete problems. He outlined three areas he said will be of particular importance.

Civil rights, he said, are subject of "moral and historical delicacy." Incidents such as that in Howard Beach have illustrated the fact that while great progress has been made in civil rights, and the nation has evolved into a non-racist society, there continue to be "vast pockets of racism," making it imperative that efforts to advance civil rights not be allowed to falter.

The constitutional principle of church-state separation must also be "drastically and passionately reaffirmed," Wieseltier said.

"That is not to say that religion should be banned from the private realm, but it is of absolute importance that religion be kept out of the public realm.

tinental-style, three-year-old restaurant -- the only kosher restaurant in Australia, he added.

His credo, he said, was to ensure a glatt kosher kitchen, and then to let his chefs, who aren't Jewish, "do as much as they can." He admitted they sometimes found it difficult to prepare fine cuisine without dairy products. Speaking as a chef, he, too, missed adding real cream to sauces.

Exhibitor Louis Petralia of Ronzoni Foods Corp. here came to sell pasta. He said the kosher market was an important opportunity that his company finally recognized two years ago. He has recommended that the company consider making their frozen Italian dinners kosher, he added.

The food exhibitors were scurrying just to have enough samples ready. Visitors said they enjoyed the food, although little of it was new to those who kept kosher. One man said he missed the Sephardic food he grew up with. Many people wished for some elbow room as they attempted to stroll in the aisles.

Some people maintain that chocolate is better than love. Then there are those who maintain that chocolate is love. But practically everyone agrees chocolate is the most tempting thing to come along since Adam fell for an apple. Like all great love stories, the story of man's love for chocolate is laced with romance, adventure, devotion and triumph.
