

Demjanjuk's Trial Continues

TEL AVIV (JTA) — The trial of alleged war criminal John Demjanjuk continued in Jerusalem district Court with the cross-examination of Helge Grabitz, a member of the district attorney's office in Hamburg who specializes in the prosecution of Nazi war criminals.

Demjanjuk's American Attorney Mark O'Connor, is seeking to demonstrate that his client was a prisoner of war of the Germans and not the sadistic Treblinka death camp guard known as "Ivan the Terrible."

All of his questions are aimed at disproving the prosecution's contention that Demjanjuk was trained at the Trawniki SS camp for his duties at Treblinka. He has dismissed as a forgery Demjanjuk's identification card, signed by the Trawniki commandant, which Israel obtained from Soviet sources. Grabitz, who authenticated the signature on the card, said that she had never come across the name Demjanjuk in the Trawniki documents she studied, but noted that she examined only a small portion of the documents, the rest being missing.

O'Connor wanted to know whether non-German but Aryan-looking POWs were conscripted for guard duty at the death camp. He apparently sought to cast doubt that the Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk was one of them.

Demjanjuk was not in court Wednesday. He complained that he was ill and watched the proceedings on closed circuit television from a cot in a makeshift cell adjacent to the courtroom.

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A leading Israeli scholar and former diplomat delivered an unprecedented blast at South African Jewry here. "They are part of the white power structure and benefit from it. There's nothing Israel owes people who are part of a racist regime," Prof. Shlomo Avineri declared at a Hebrew University symposium on South Africa. Apparently referring to Israel's reluctance to follow the West in applying sanctions against the Pretoria regime because of possible repercussions for South African Jews, Avineri asserted that "South African Jews can take care of themselves very well and don't need Israel's support." Israel announced last week that it would phase out its military and other relationships with South Africa.
