Woman Packs, Sends Holiday Boxes

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Two years ago when her son went away to college, Linda Gordon began to volunteer at her synagogue to send holiday parcels to students. She soon realized the demand for this service was more than the synagogue could handle.

Gordon was inspired to start Chag Sameach (Happy Holiday), a mail-order business that provides kosher packages on all the major Jewish holidays.

Each package is filled with enough cake and candy for several

The "Roaring '20s Revue," headlining the 500-seat showroom at the Holiday Casino on the Center Strip, features the beautiful Holiday Dancers, along with the unlimited musical talent of Sue & The Brothers, the hilarious antics of ventriloquist Keny Stewart and his "friend," Sylvia, and hula-hoop phenomenon Diane Batchelor. people as well as information about the holiday's background, prayers, songs and religious ornaments. "It forces people to celebrate. I really want to perpetuate Judaism," said Gordon, a housewife who sits on the Mid-Atlantic Council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. "I feel in a small way this is helping." She works at home, 7629 Fontaine St., Potomac, Md.

Most of the parcels are sent to students from parents, some of whom believe their children will be more inclined to observe the holidays if the parcel comes from someone outside the family, Gordon indicated.

Gordon also has sent packages to grandparents living alone and in nursing homes, to hospital patients as well as to people who want their own package. Last Passover, she said, she received an order from a group of Jewish inmates in an Iowa penitentiary.

Orders have come from as far away as Ecuador and Japan, locations which are prohibitive for Gordon because of the high postage costs. "It's really a shame," she said. "These people need it the most."
