Las Vegas cat owners have a great opportunity to see the origin of their pet cat. The Southern Nevada Zoological Park recently opened a new exhibit featuring Jungle Cats (Felis chaus). The cat was well known to the ancient Egyptians as they were depicted on wall paintings from that time. Today the cat ranges from Egypt through the Middle East, Central Asia and the Indian Subcontinent. Living mainly in jungles and swamps, diets consist of rodents, birds, frogs, and fish. The Jungle cat is a very elusive hunter and its skills are highly developed.

Each afternoon during the month of January, park zoologists will give a lecture on small cats and conduct a question and answer period for the public.

Call the zoo at 648-5955 for details and come visit the new residents at the Southern Nevada Zoological Park. Winter zoo hours are 9 a.m. to dusk Monday through Sunday. Admission prices are $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for children (2-12) and seniors (aged 60 and over).

UNLV will break ground in late January on the first phase of a dormitory project that will house 500 students, according to President Robert C. Maxson.

"This project represents another step in the maturing of our young university. We are moving toward a traditional residential campus," the president said.

Dr. Robert Ackerman, dean of student services, said the bid specifications were sent to contractors in December. The bid opening for the $6.3 million, two-phase project is set for Jan. 19.
