

Las Vegas Gold Coaches Agree To Direct Two High School Swim Programs

Some high school students, like Tyler Mayfield of Gorman, pictured above, might possess the skills to have a shot at the Olympic team. Though only 15, Mayfield is being recruited by such colleges as Stanford. Las Vegas Gold Head Coach David Marsh has announced the formation of swim programs at Clark, Chaparral and Gorman. Head Coach David Marsh of the Las Vegas Gold Swim Team has announced that he and his assistants will coach high school students at Clark, Gorman and Chaparral in preparation for the state meet on May 14.

Marsh and Gold team member Rich Hughey will coach students from Clark and Chaparral, while Gold Assistant Coach Joe Sill will coach Gorman students. Practices are currently being held at the Las Vegas Municipal Pool on Bonanza and the Bucky Buchanan Natatorium on the UNLV campus.

"My first exposure to swimming was in high school," said Marsh, who recently led the Gold to its first Nevada Short Course Championship. "I took it up because it looked like a fun sport and a way to meet other people. Well, that social outlet turned into a means to go to college and eventually into a career."

Marsh, who won a swimming scholarship to Auburn University, was the alternate on the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team.

"Swimming is a means to attend college for some kids," he added. "At the very minimum it broadens their social base and physical well-being. We're not looking for high school students to give up everything for swimming; we are looking for enthusiasm and an interest in better fundamentals. These are the kinds of things they'll take with them for the rest of their life."

BBYO Gets Help In Texas For Education About AIDS

WASHINGTON (JTA) — The B'nai B'rith Youth Organization has received a $50,000 grant to help fund its AIDS education program in Texas.

The program, "AIDS; We C.A.R.E. (Campaign for AIDS Recognition and Education), is budgeted for $87,000 in Texas alone. The grant is from the Texas-based Meadows Foundation.

The program will target youth, their adult advisers and parents through a series of informal youth activities and community events. A list of program ideas, such as AIDS hotlines, political action and role-playing scenarios, is included in the manual "AIDS We Care," published by BBYO.

BBYO membership worldwide chose the AIDS education theme. "The kids vote on what they want to be more aware of," said Neil Rubin, spokesperson for BBYO. "In the past, they've chosen topics like teen suicide and drunk driving, and just recently they voted on the homeless as the topic for the upcoming year."

The BBYO effort will differ from most AIDS education programs because of its Jewish orientation.

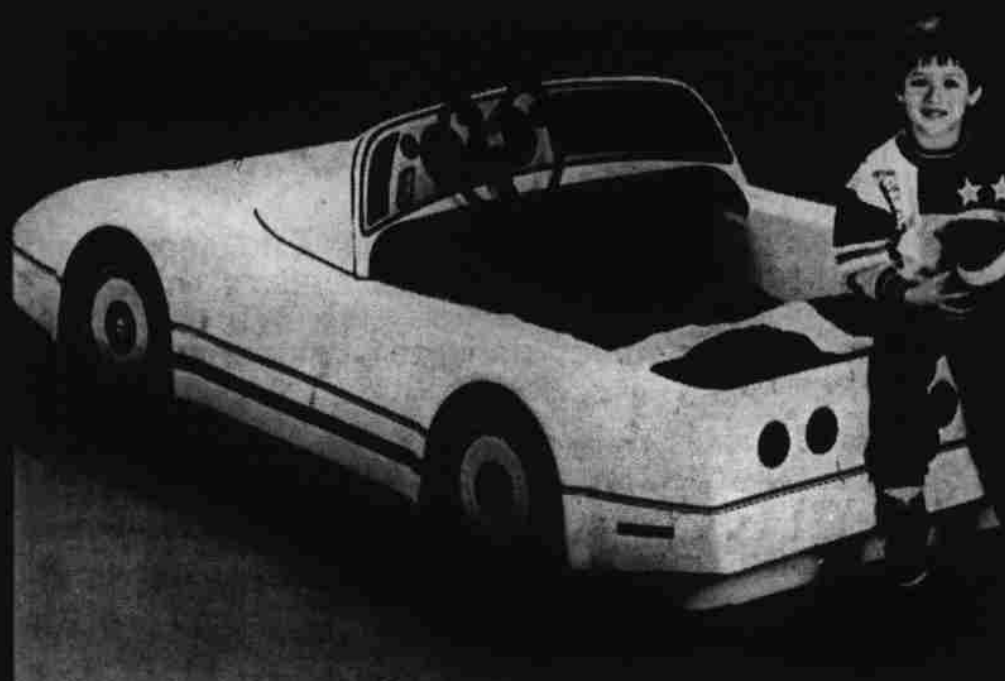

"We want the kids to learn how Jewish ethics play a part in this. We're trying to bring it to them on a Jewish level," Rubin said.
