

Paradise Springs Prepares For Release Of Phase Three

The third phase of executive homes in the secluded waterscaped community of Paradise Springs will be released soon as home buyers in the second phase prepare to move into their new homes in the award-winning enclave developed by Torino Industries.

Because of brisk sales, Torino Industries is preparing to release the third phase of homes in Paradise Springs, the award-winning waterscaped community in southeast Las Vegas.

"We are looking forward to welcoming home owners in Phase Two who will be moving into their beautiful new homes within the next few weeks," said Douglas Deaver, vice president of Torino Industries, developers of Paradise Springs.

The most recent phase will be released for sale by the end of the month, said Deaver. The first two phases of Paradise Springs are nearly sold out.

"Paradise Springs is becoming one of the most popular addresses in Las Vegas," Deaver said.

With homes priced from $125,000, the lushly landscaped and waterscaped secluded community earned an award for excellence in landscaping from the Southern Nevada Landscape Contractors Association -- its first award in the development category.

Paradise Springs, a gated, private community with a masonry perimeter wall enclosing the homes, is located on block south of Tropicana at Pecos and Hacienda.

The 27-acre master-planned community features elaborate waterscaping and landscaping surrounding Mediterranean-style single-family detached homes.

Floorplans include two-and-three-bedroom designs, some with lofts and balconies. All have private courtyards and attached two-car garages.

Fireplaces with tiled hearths are featured in master bedrooms and family rooms, along with family-sized kitchen, cathedral ceilings, skylights, greenhouse windows and European style whirlpool tubs in the master bath.

Paradise Springs has a community-sized pool, spa and cabana in a central recreation area for the use of residents and their guests.

Visitors can tour the four professionally-decorated models from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. For more information about Paradise Springs, call the sales office at 454-5545.

Israeli Prime Minister Unveils Cornerstone For New Wiesenthal Center Museum

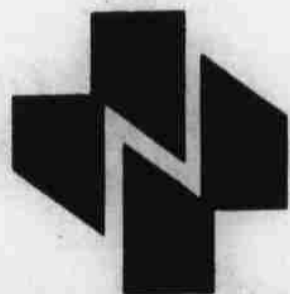

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir recently unveiled the cornerstone of the Simon Wiesenthal Center's new Beit Hashoah/Museum of Tolerance at a ceremony in Los Angeles, calling the museum, "a major educational force for the future." Coming directly from talks with President Reagan in Washington, D.C., Shamir spoke to a crowd of over 2000 at the site of the Center's new building: "The need for a united front of Jewish people is even greater," he said, referring to recent unrest in Gaza and the West Bank. "Despite any differences of opinion, the basic relationship between Israel and the United States is as strong as ever. That is the meaning of friendship and alliance." Pictured at the cornerstone ceremony with Prime Minister Shamir is Samuel Belzberg (front left), Chairman of the Wiesenthal Center's Board of Trustees. Also pictured are (in back, from left): California State Controller Gray Davis, Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky, Wiesenthal Center Dean Rabbi Marvin Hier, Michael Milken, and Shulamit Shamir (right), wife of the Prime Minister.

TEL AVIV (JTA) — Unrest in the West Bank and Gaza Strip appears to have had no negative effect on tourism to Israel so far this year.

Tourist arrivals during the first two months of 1988 numbered 193,000, compared to 164,500 in the same period of 1987, an 18 percent increase. The figures, released by the Central Bureau of Statistics and the Ministry of Tourism, are based on police data at airports, ports of entry and border crossings.

In February, 105,500 tourists arrived in the country, 88,400 by air, 16,300 overland and 800 by sea.
