money that he took from Arafat and Gadhafi."

The new accusation comes on top of charges of payoffs, kickbacks and bribes that could topple the government of Greece's Socialist prime minister.

During a five-hour interview, Koskotas also said that he smuggled 90 million drachmas ($600,000) directly to the prime minister, hidden in a box of Pampers diapers.

Koskotas, who has been charged by the Athens government with embezzling $213 million from his own bank, was interviewed by the Times at the county jail in Salem, Mass.

He is being held on U.S. income tax evasion charges from 1979, before the 34-year-old tradite Palestinian terrorist Mohammed Rashid to the United States.

Although both Washington and Athens deny that there is a direct linkage between the two cases, they concede that Papandreou and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker discussed the matter when they met in February.

Greek-American entrepreneur returned to settle in Athens.

Koskotas is fighting extradition to Greece but fears he may be exchanged against his will if Greece agrees to ex-
