

Expansion At The Riviera

The Riviera Hotel & Casino, in the midst of a $200 million expansion, is on schedule for the opening of its 125,000 square foot casino. The project, set to open in December, will give the famous resort the world's largest casino. The new underground valet parking is 95 percent finished, and half of the 28,000 cubic yards of concrete and 6 million pounds of steel that will make up the casino is in place. It will be the biggest casino in the world. The third and final phase of the Riviera's expansion, a 43-story tower adding 1,600 more rooms to the hotel, will be completed in 1992.

Lesson Learned From Lebanon War: Israel Will Not Interfere In Beirut

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Seven years after the Lebanon war, there is a broad consensus in Israel not to intervene again in that country's troubles.

Israel has no intention of coming to the aid of its erstwhile Lebanese Christian allies, whose strongholds in Beirut and elsewhere are being battered by a Syrian force of 40,000.

Vice Premier Shimon Peres made that clear recently during a tour of settlements in Galilee. Israel pulled out of Lebanon determined never to return, he said.

He added that the main lesson to be learned from the world's apparent lack of concern for the ongoing bloodshed in Lebanon is that every country has to depend on its own forces.

The embattled Christians in Beirut no longer seek or expect Israeli assistance. They are relying on themselves and on generous supplies of arms and ammunition from Iraq to resist the severe Syrian shelling.

Israel believes it has done its share by alerting the world to the carnage in Lebanon.

to express concern over events in Lebanon.

Arens sent a similar message to Cairo through the Egyptian ambassador to Israel, Mohammed Basiouny.

Wafd, the newspaper of the opposition party in Egypt, said that the government is more concerned with Israel than with Syrian activity in Lebanon.
