At The United Nations

budget, withholding payments meant that the World Organization would have to seriously curtail its activities, reduce its staff and close down offices. Even the most fanatical enemies of Israel and the most uncritical supporters of the Arabs had second thoughts on the wisdom of disregarding the U.S. stand.

The Malta spirit hovering over the USSR position clearly indicated to the Arabs that this time the Russians were saying "nyet" to the PLO.

Lo and behold, after several postponements of the vote, the Arabs caved in and took the cowardly way out. By not even presenting their resolution for a vote, they avoided a crushing defeat of their proposal. Instead, they took refuge behind attacks on the United States for having dared to announce in advance what would happen if the resolution passed.

"Threats", they called it. "Blackmail", they screamed.

But the United States stood firm and a lesson was learned by all.

It remains to be seen, however, how long it will be remembered when the next attack on Israel and on international law and order is launched by the Arabs.

Is it not without interest to note that American firmness, however much denounced by some Arabs, in no way affected adversely Egypt's acceptance of the Baker proposal on Middle East peace which was announced almost simultaneously with the rejection of the PLO maneuver here at the UN.

That coincidence should teach the U.S. another valuable lesson, namely: however much the Administration may be interested in Arab cooperation, it cannot be achieved by weakness but only by being firm!

Let us hope that this lesson, too, will be heeded by both the U.S. and by Israel in their future dealings with the Arabs!

Another hopeful sign that the U.S. may have decided on a new approach in its dealings with the Arabs here at the UN was Vice President Dan Quayle's surprise meeting last week with the UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

The declared purpose of his special visit with the UN Chief was to press for the repeal of the infamous "Zionism is racism" resolution adopted by the biased General Assembly's automatic majority in the year 1975.

He announced the night before his UN visit — during a major speech delivered at a Yeshiva University Hanukkah fete at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel — that nothing less would do to restore the dignity and honor of the UN than to erase that stain on its conscience by its replacement with a new resolution honestly recognizing Zionism for what it is — the national liberation movement of the Jewish people.

Perhaps all this indicates that it is no longer enough for the UN not to commit any new atrocities against Israel in order to benefit from U.S. contributions, but it must do something positive — repeal the anti-Zionist resolutions — if it does not want to see them cut off.
