UNLV's Alumni Association is sponsoring a statewide competition to select a sculpture for the lobby of its new Alumni Center, which is now under construction.
 Nevada artists are invited to submit a scale drawing of their design, a description of the materials that will be used to construct the piece, and a written proposal explaining its significance.
 "We are interested in a sculpture that communicates a feeling about the university," said John LaBounty, chairman of the committee responsible for organizing the sculpture search. "The piece should reflect university life, education, and alumni."
 For more information or an application form, contact UNLV's Alumni Relations Office at 739-3621.
